

Nixon Welfare Plan Is Sent to Congress

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon sent to Congress today his proposals for a new $4 billion federal welfare program to provide a basic income for any American family unable to take care of itself.

Nixon said his new approach would end what he described as the "blatant unfairness" of the present welfare system and create a stronger incentive among the poor to work.

The message to Congress contained the proposals he outlined in a television-radio address to the nation Friday night.

It included a specific request for $600 million additional funds for child care centers to aid working mothers.

Nixon said he wants to provide child care for 450,000 children of the 150,000 current welfare recipients who will go into work training programs.

The new system he proposes,

Nixon told Congress, will lessen red tape, end bitterly resented "welfare snooping" and make federal payments on the basis of certification of income, with spot checks to prevent abuses.

Nixon said he was outlining his conclusions to provide a "coherent, fresh approach to welfare, manpower training and revenue sharing."

Specific legislative proposals will be sent to Congress after the summer recess by the secretary of health, education and welfare, Nixon said. Nixon is calling for an end to the present welfare system and the aid to families with dependent children program, adopting in its place a new family assistance program.

It would provide minimum basic benefits of $1,600 a year for a family of four—payable to the working or nonworking poor and to families with dependent children whether headed by father or a mother.

Nixon stressed equality of treatment, a work requirement and a work incentive in the program.

He is eliminating any requirement that a household be without a father to become eligible for benefits. "That present requirement in many states has the effect of breaking up families and contributes to delinquency and violence," Nixon said.

He proposed that all employable persons who accept the welfare payments be required to register for work or job training, and that adequate and convenient day care be provided for children where ever it is necessary to enable a parent to train or work.

In 20 states, Nixon estimated, the present average benefit payments are lower than those he is proposing. And these are areas, he says, where poverty is often the most severe.

The new system would encourage work, Nixon said, by allowing a new worker to retain the first $720 of his yearly earnings without any benefit reduction.

Nixon urged Congress to begin study of these proposals promptly so that laws can be enacted and funds authorized as soon as possible.

He envisioned that "for the first time, all dependent families with children in America, regardless of where they live, would be assured of minimum standard payments based upon uniform and single eligibility standards and "would be encouraged to train and work and stay together."

"These are far-reaching ef-

Trading Volume Is Low

LONDON (AP) — Speculators bought West German marks and sold Belgian francs and British pounds today after Europe's money markets opened for the first time since the devaluation of the French franc. But there were no wild fluctuations and trading volume was low.

First pressures appeared to be more heavy on the Belgian franc than on the pound. In Brussels, the Belgian currency dropped to its lowest permitted level—50.375 to the dollar—and forward trading was suspended.

The pound dropped just over half a cent in London. But it remained well above the official floor and comfortably above the level at which the Bank of England intervenes with support buying.

The mark was stronger in Zurich, and other currencies were under pressure.

British officials had maintained all weekend that the pound is strong enough to withstand pressure for devaluation to match the French action. But there was always a possibility of a speculative rush to the West German mark in the expectation that the Germans will revalue their currency upward after the general election in the fall.

In an attempt to prevent a price spiral resulting from the devaluation, the French government froze most wholesale and retail prices until Sept. 15 while it prepares a package of economic measures for a special session of the National Assembly.

Currency dealers in London, Paris, Geneva and Frankfurt predicted a weaker pound and a rush to buy West German marks. They said if there were serious speculative movements, the Belgian franc and the Danish kroner could weaken.

British money traders said that even if speculators put pressure on the pound again, the nation's economic position is sound enough to make prospects of another British devaluation very unlikely. The last devaluation of the pound was in November 1967.

British treasury officials said the French devaluation did not threaten the pound.

Help for the pound is anticipated Wednesday when Britain's July trade figures will be published. The figures have steadily improved during the past months and now are running at an estimated surplus of about $600 million. July's figures are expected to show further improvement.

In announcing the French price freeze, Finance Minister Valéry Giscard d'Estaing made clear the government would be taking steps to avoid the "price flare-up" union leaders said would result from devaluation. He warned the government would crack down on any unjustified price rises during the freeze period.

Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas said the French National Assembly would be called into special session Sept. 15.

End of Quarantine

Astronauts Edwin Aldrin, Michael Collins and Neil Armstrong, left to right, were congratulated by NASA employees Sunday after ending their quarantine, imposed following their landing on the moon. The crew received a clean bill of health. (UPI)

Spacemen Free at Last

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Freed from three weeks of isolation, the Apollo 11 astronauts relaxed with their families today before plunging into a hectic round of celebrations of their historic moon-landing.

Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins sped straight to their homes Sunday night when released from quarantine quarters. Only hours before, doctors had said they could find no evidence of alien germs or infection from the astronauts' lunar contact.

A waiting world was ready to heap the pioneers with honors in the weeks ahead.

The whirlwind schedule starts Tuesday when Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins hold a news conference here to report on their daring mission.

That afternoon, a downtown Houston luncheon will be attended by nearly 700 space workers.

On Wednesday, the astronauts and their families fly to New York for a ticker tape parade and an appearance at the United Nations, followed in the afternoon by another parade in Chicago. The day winds up in Los Angeles at a gala state dinner with President Nixon as host.

On Saturday, they will be honored by a Houston parade followed by a Texas-sized party in the Astrodome.

In the weeks that follow, they'll be welcomed in many cities in the United States and will appear before Congress. There also is talk of a world tour.

The moonmen got a preview of what lies ahead when they were cheered and mobbed by about 300 space workers as they emerged from quarantine Sunday night.

All three were smiling and waving as they walked through a door that had been sealed minutes before.

Each took a separate chauffeur feured auto home. The astronauts had seen their families almost daily since being isolated, but only through a thick glass window in the lunar receiving lab. They last were home July 7, nine days before their launching from Cape Kennedy.

The 20 other persons in the quarantine also were released Sunday night and many were greeted by their families. Included was one woman, Miss Heather Owens, 23, a technician who was placed in the isolation ward last week after accidentally being exposed to moon dust in another part of the lab.

The astronauts were cleared to leave the chamber after Dr. Charles A. Berry and three other Manned Spacecraft Center officials presented data Sunday to an Atlanta, Ga., meeting of the Inter-Agency Committee on Back Contamination, a group of scientists who controlled the quarantine.

Intensified Enemy Attacks Reported

SAIGON (AP) — Thirty-eight Americans were killed and 144 wounded in fierce attacks that North Vietnamese troops launched against U.S. forces along the Cambodian, Laotian and demilitarized zone frontiers Sunday, military spokesmen said today.

The toll of American war dead was the largest reported during any 24-hour period since a lull began in the fighting June 18.

U.S. military analysts indicated that the stepped up attacks could presage the fall campaign that American officers expect.

There was new apprehension along the demilitarized zone with the disclosure that North Vietnamese troops fighting the U.S. Marines there over the past four days were from a fresh regiment.

Fighting was reported near the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon, just below the central sector of the demilitarized zone, on two sides of Hamburger Hill beside the Laotian border, and in the populous coastal lowlands south of Da Nang.

Three more American helicopters were shot down, two during a fight 28 miles southeast of Da Nang and the third 50 miles west of Da Nang. Two crewmen were killed and two were wounded.

U.S. headquarters also reported 15 enemy rocket and mortar attacks from 8 a.m. Sunday to 8 a.m. Monday, 11 of them against U.S. troops or bases. Seven Americans were killed and 36 wounded.

The number of rocket and mortar attacks were nearly double the daily average of eight two weeks ago and was up by five from the daily average of 10 last week.

The U.S. Command also disclosed that the attacks on the Marines below the DMZ last Thursday and again Sunday were made by troops of the 9th Regiment of the North Vietnamese 304th Division. It was the first reported appearance of the regiment in South Vietnam since the siege of Khe Sanh last year.

Nineteen U.S. Marines were killed and 80 wounded when more than 250 North Vietnamese troops attacked two of their night bivouacs astride infiltration routes two miles south of the central DMZ. Enemy losses were put at 36 killed.

Satellite May Help Controllers

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans to orbit a busy new spacecraft Tuesday packing 13 separate experiments, including one that could pave the way for a unique air traffic control system in the 1970s.

The 1,987-pound payload, called ATS 5 for the fifth applications technology satellite, is to roar away from Cape Kennedy at 6:53 a.m. EDT, atop a powerful Atlas-Centaur rocket. After a 10-hour flight through space, a satellite motor is to kick it into a stationary circular orbit 22,300 miles over the equator above South America.

At that altitude, the spacecraft's orbital speed matches earth's rotation so ATS 5 will seemingly hover over the same geographical spot at all times.

Prime experiment on the spacecraft is a stabilization system involving four finger thin booms, each 3 feet long, which will be extended to various lengths to see if they can take advantage of earth's gravity pull to aim spacecraft sensors.

The theory is that gravity can act on appropriately shaped spacecraft to keep one side always pointed toward the ground, much as the same face of the moon always looks at this planet.

Three communications experiments are aboard ATS 5. One, called L-band, will test the feasibility of relaying high-frequency radio signals via satellite to pinpoint the location of aircraft over wide ocean areas out of range of ground-based radars.

Cattle Theft Is Reported By Thompson

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax is investigating the theft of 30 head of Charolais and Angus cattle from the E. W. Thompson farm, Route 4.

Thompson said that six Charolais were stolen about a week ago, and the latest batch last Friday night. He said the rustlers apparently backed a truck onto the property by way of a dirt road leading south of the Green Ridge Road.

All of the cattle are registered, Thompson said, adding that he has posted a $1,000 reward for information leading to their return.

Sheriff Fairfax could not be reached for comment Monday.

Says Green Beret Men Killed a 'Double Agent'

SAIGON (AP) — An American attorney charged in a petition filed with the U.S. Army today that a Vietnamese man eight Green Beret soldiers are accused of murdering was a double agent employed by the North Vietnamese army.

The attorney, George Gregory, of Cheraw, S.C., said the alleged victim was discovered to be employed by the CNC intelligence organization of the North Vietnamese Army. Gregory said he also was employed by U.S. military authorities and the Central Intelligence Agency to spy on the North Vietnamese.

Gregory told a news conference in Saigon the charges were brought against the eight Green Berets by an officer he identified only as Col. Ed V. Hendren, of the Adjutant General Staff at U.S. Army Vietnam headquarters in Long Binh, 15 miles northeast of Saigon.

Army spokesmen at Long

Binh could not be reached immediately for comment.

U.S. military officials have divulged no details of the case beyond saying that the slaying occurred June 20 near the Special Forces headquarters at Nha Trang.

Gregory's statements supported earlier statements by American military sources that the man—whose body has not been found—was a North Vietnamese agent and his slaying was an assigned "military mission."

Gregory said the alleged slaying occurred on or about June 20. He contended that his client, Maj. Thomas C. Middleton Jr., 30, of Jefferson, S.C., was confined to the stockade at Long Binh July 20, a month after the killing allegedly occurred.

Gregory said that July 24 charges were brought by Hendren against Middleton and the seven others.

Gregory, a former state senator who spent three years in the Army's legal corps, also said on Sunday that he would fight to keep the Army's blackout from extending to the trial.

"A man is entitled to a public trial," he said. "They will want to try him in a vacuum, but I am not going to let them do that."

Meanwhile, the U.S. Navy apparently gave up an almost month-long search for the body of the murdered man. The U.S. minesweeper Woodpecker docked at Cua Da, near the coastal city of Nha Trang, Sunday. The vessel's commander, Lt. Victor G. Reiling of Dayton, Ohio, refused to comment on the Woodpecker's mission but said it would not be resumed today.

"We didn't find the body," one of the minesweeper's crew said. The Woodpecker and two other

Guerrilla Outposts Attacked

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli jets pounded Arab guerrilla concentrations in the foothills of Mt. Hermon in Lebanon today, the army announced.

The 30-minute attack followed a spate of 21 sabotage incidents in July linked to guerrillas encamped in Lebanon, a spokesman said.

The warplanes struck at seven camps believed to belong to the Al Fatah and Al Saika guerrilla organizations, he said.

It was Israel's second air attack on Lebanese territory in two weeks. Israeli jets hit Arab bases in the same area July 30.

The planes hit camps in southeastern Lebanon, east of the Hasbani River, the spokesman said.

The strike followed an air attack inside Jordan on its Ghor irrigation canal Sunday. But that attack did not deter Arab commandos from opening fire today on an Israeli border patrol in the Beisan Valley.

The patrol returned the fire, but casualties were not reported. The canal, damaged by a bombing raid Sunday, appeared deserted today, observers reported.

Israeli warplanes struck the canal in retaliation for Jordanian violations of a secret cease-fire agreement, the Israeli Foreign Ministry reported.

Jordan claimed that its anti-aircraft guns brought down three of the Israeli planes, but Israel said all its planes returned safely.

Draw Up Dog Statute

City Counselor J. R. Fritz said today he had been requested to draw up an ordinance for presentation to the City Council limiting the ownership of dogs to five per family.

The request stemmed from a case last Friday when Earnest Shull, 1920 South Summit, was found guilty in municipal court of violating the city dog ordinance by maintaining a common nuisance.

There were 22 witnesses, all of them from the same neighborhood, who testified in the case.

After the hearing, Shull was given 48 hours in which to correct the situation.

Since then, Shull said, he has reduced the number of dogs kept at the kennel at his home to 15. There were 31 "kennel dogs" originally, he said.

Most of the neighbors who appeared at the trial complained of an unpleasant odor caused by the kennel.

Shull countered with the claim that the smell came from burning rubbish which was already on the property when he moved there recently.

Shull stressed that he is not

Ann Landers

Don't Need Words To Express Love

Dear Ann Landers: I was moved by the letter from the wife who complained because her husband never said, "I love you." My husband was the same way, but he didn't need to say anything. The things he did spoke for him.

We had been married 25 years when he died. He was not articulate — in fact he was more of a blusher than a talker. But there were little pats, and pinches, and sometimes a wink. I remember his wonderful gifts during our salad days — a 49 cent box of chocolate cherries or a 50 cent handkerchief from the dollar store. One day he bought me a bottle of cologne. He said he had smelled it on a girl in the office and he thought I'd like it.

My loveliest memory is the time he came home from a two-day business trip with an artificial sunflower in his suitcase. He said he bought it because he knew I loved sunflowers and it reminded him of me. That sunflower is my most cherished possession. He was telling me, "I love you," without saying the words. — O. City

Dear O: What a man he must have been! No woman should need words with music like that!

Dear Ann Landers: A friend of ours was the center of attention recently at a dinner party. He is an amateur hypnotist and told us some fascinating stories about what can be accomplished through hypnosis.

One of the points he made was that hypnosis can be used on athletes to make them perform better. Is this possible? My husband made the comment that if it were true, the technique would be utilized universally. Have you ever heard of this? Please comment. — Unconvinced

Dear O: Hypnosis can have some surprising and extraordinary effects but any procedure involving the brain can be dangerous and should not be used as a gimmick.

Yes, I have heard of hypnotizing athletes to help them become super-stars. About 20 years ago the St. Louis Browns engaged a hypnotist to instill in the team a more "positive attitude." (They were in the cellar and morale was sagging.) The result: The Browns ended the season in seventh place.

Dear Ann Landers: Your recent advice to teens in regard to where to go if they suspect they have VD was excellent. You said, "The law prevents

Urges Repayment Of a Loan by SBA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Wright Patman of the House Banking Committee urged the Small Business Administration today to demand immediate repayment of an $80,000 loan which was given Charles G. (Bebe) Rebozo, Miami millionaire, over the objections of several SBA staff members.

In a prepared House speech, the Texas Democrat said the money was loaned to Rebozo's Monroe Abstract and Title Co. of Miami in 1962.

Repayment was to be in six years, on May 1, 1968. But the maturity date has since been extended twice, for two years each time, stretching the life of the loan to the maximum 10 years allowable under law.

Rebozo came to national attention last November as a friend and Florida neighbor of Richard M. Nixon. Other close Rebozo friends are former Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., and Thomas A. Butler, head of the Miami regional office of the SBA.

Last February, the Associated Press disclosed that Butler had chosen Rebozo to be developer of a shopping center for Cuban refugee businessmen. The project was backed by a $2.4 million SBA guarantee of full payment of rent on all available space.

It also was disclosed that Butler owns property on Fisher Island which Rebozo is trying to develop as a resort or residential area, and that the SBA official also was a charter stockholder in a bank founded by Rebozo. SBA officials in Washing-

To Ask to Exhume Body for Autopsy

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis says he will ask this week for exhumation of the body of Mary Jo Kopechne so that an autopsy can be performed.

Dinis' request to authorities in Pennsylvania, where Miss Kopechne is buried, will require a court ruling.

Miss Kopechne, 28, drowned July 18 when a car driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy went off a bridge and plunged into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island off Martha's Vineyard.

Kennedy, who did not report the accident until several hours after it happened, pleaded guilty to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident and received a suspended sentence of two months in jail.

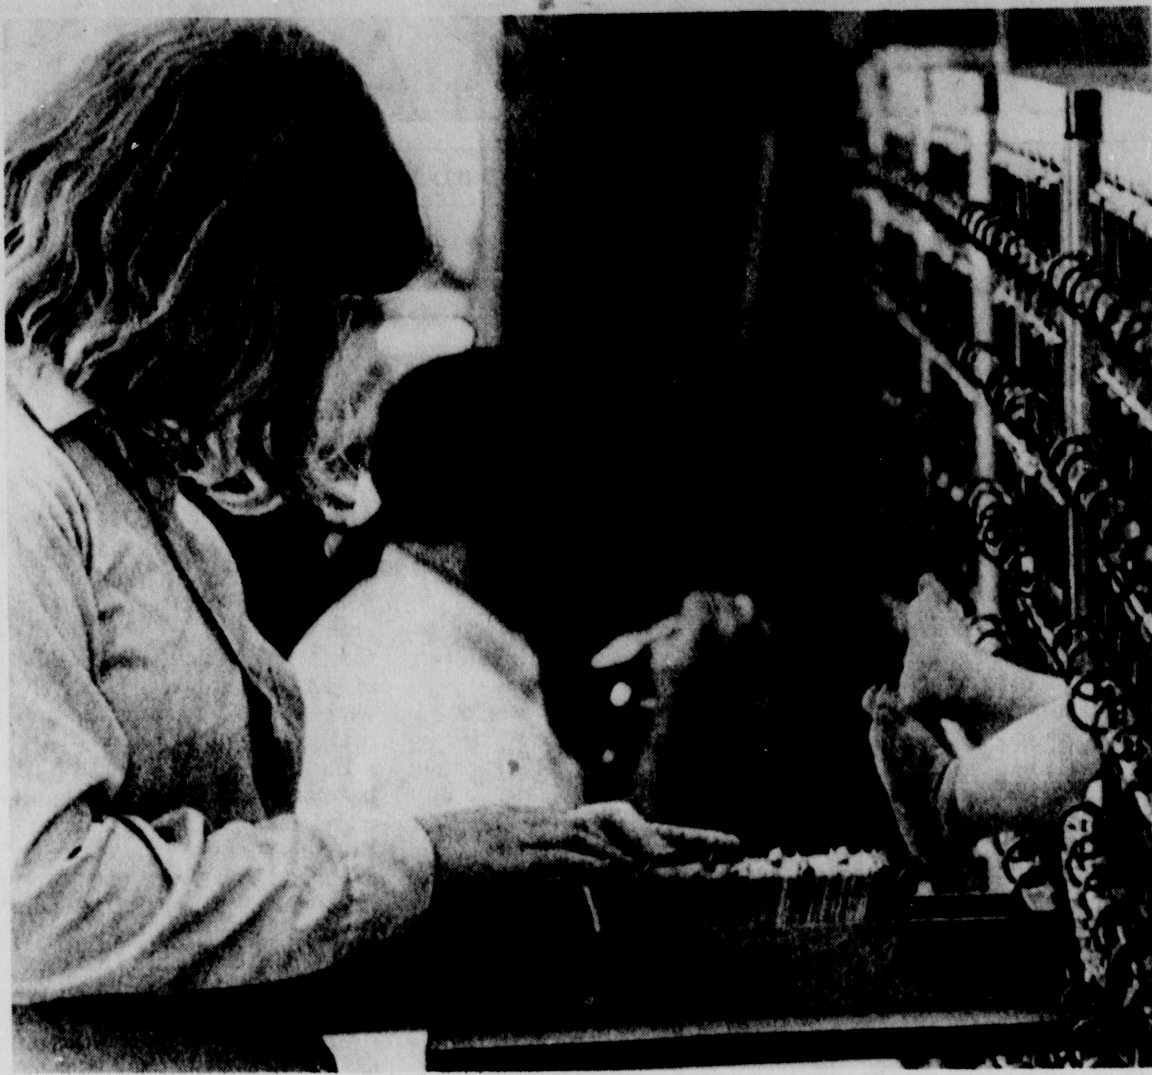

Dinis later ordered an inquest into Miss Kopechne's death.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kopechne, the dead girl's parents, have been strongly opposed to exhumation of her body.

79 Firemen Are Facing Day in Court

GARY, Ind. (AP) — City firemen have ended a six-day strike, but 79 of them face trials starting today that could result in the loss of their jobs.

The 79 firemen—out of a total force of 278—were suspended without pay last week for participating in the strike.

Mayor Richard G. Hatcher said in a Sunday night news conference that more suspensions could follow. Virtually all the firemen took part in the walkout called by their union in a dispute over wages.

Union officials gave a back-to-work order after the union's lawyer, Adam Benjamin, met Sunday night with Hatcher and the Gary Board of Public Works. The decision was made despite the city officials' rejection of a request for amnesty for suspended firemen.

Hatcher said he told Benjamin that he could promise only "fair and objective treatment" to the individual firemen going on trial before the Board of Public Works. Possible penalties include dismissal, demotion and extended suspensions.

Demonstration Held To End Modern Mass

ST. LOUIS (AP) — About 1,000 persons participated in outdoor services Sunday to protest discontinuance of "modern" masses at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church.

The reform services were ended because they tended to divide the congregation, the Rev. Louis J. Hanlon said.

The protestors, many of them St. Louis University students, said they liked Sunday services formerly held in the basement of St. Francis because the modern liturgy enhanced their feeling of participation.

A leader of the dissenting group said, "We will continue to meet at the closed door of St. Francis Sunday after Sunday until it is reopened."

CBS Will Adhere To New Ad Plans

NEW YORK (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System says it will go along with a tobacco industry plan to end broadcast cigarette advertising by Dec. 31 if Congress approves.

But network president Frank Stanton said Sunday the plan was unfair to networks because it would allow the tobacco industry to switch its advertising money to print.

A CBS spokesman said cigarette ads account for about 10 per cent of the network's revenues. According to Broadcasting magazine's 1969 yearbook, the top five tobacco advertisers spent $1.6 billion on network TV ads in 1967, and another $14 million on network radio.

The American Broadcasting Company rejected the plan last Thursday. The National Broadcasting Company has not responded publicly.

Infant Is Killed In Plane Accident

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Shortly after takeoff, Raymond Houghton radioed a distress message: his light plane's engine had stopped and he would try a powerless landing on a Pepperdine College athletic field.

Huddled in the Cessna's rear seat was his wife, Wanda, cradling their 18-month-old daughter in her arms.

The craft hit a concrete wall, witness said, then overturned behind the home of Dr. Norvel Young, the college president.

The infant, Lisa, was dead at the scene. Houghton, 30, and his wife, 32, were hospitalized in fair condition.

Actor-Burglars Hit

ROME (AP) — The actor-burgling gastronomes have struck again. Thieves broke into the apartment of Cosetta Greco, an Italian movie star of the 1950s, and enjoyed a cold budget and bear before exiting with $32,000 in jewels and silver. Police said it's probably the same gang that burgled the homes of Gina Lollobrigida and others in much the same manner.

CALDWELL, N.J. (AP) — The memory of Mary Jo Kopechne, the secretary killed in an auto accident involving Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, will be perpetuated by a scholarship fund at Caldwell College for Women.

A spokesman for the college said the fund has been established by a group of Boston area businessmen who were "impressed by the idealism manifested by Mary Jo."

Miss Kopechne was graduated from the college in 1962. The accident in which she was killed July 18 occurred near Chappaquiddick Island, Mass. Her parents are residents of Berkeley Heights, N.J.

SINGAPORE (AP) — Angus Ogilvy, 44-year-old husband of Princess Alexandra of Britain, became ill during a church service Sunday.

The couple came to Singapore for celebrations of the republic's 150th anniversary.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Are there political plans in Hubert Humphrey's future?

"I like public life and I may very well want to return to it. I just have not decided," the former vice president said Sunday on the CBS program "Face the Nation."

Drinking Contest Fatal to Soldier

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Authorities said a soldier who was in Greensboro to attend a wedding died Sunday several hours after a drinking contest in which he consumed three bottles of wine.

A medical examiner said Pvt. Joseph E. Gallardo, 21, of New York City, was killed by the volume of alcohol in his body.

Gallardo and five other soldiers stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C., had weekend passes to attend a wedding. At a post-wedding party, the victim and another soldier decided to see who could drink the most wine.

Good Monday News

By DICK BLYSTONE
Associated Press Writer
Ever fight City Hall? Usually you lose. Let's look at a few gains. Hark to Birmingham's frugal housing agency, the oldsters' new bridge in Salem and the youth-minded mayor of Lansing.

The district housing authority has refunded $1,356,133.17 to the Birmingham, Ala., treasury over recent years—the latest check was for more than $256,000, saved on an urban renewal project.

The authority's board chairman, Dr. J. Frank Trucks, wrote to Mayor George Seibels: "We in the Housing authority feel that public money should be spent wisely and get the maximum benefit from it. We have made this a practice in all of our operations."

The money goes back to the city's urban renewal bond funds for later developments.

In Salem, Ore., elderly residents of a low-cost housing project used to have to walk three blocks to get to a city park just across a creek. City officials refused to build a footbridge, saying one that would withstand winter floods would cost about $10,000.

Mrs. W.R. Caton, one of the residents, persisted. She wrote letters to city officials and the Capital Journal newspaper, which supported her plea. Now the elderly persons have a little wooden footbridge that can be removed in winter. It cost the city $250.

Mayor Gerald W. Graves of Lansing, Mich., is taking care of constituents who won't be voting for some time.

He launched programs of free Saturday movies for children aged 6 to 11, with free popcorn and soda pop. For high school and grade school boys and girls he instituted free bowling instruction.

The mayor also is behind a free youth employment service for those in the 16-22 age bracket.

Can the little guy make the law work for him? Well, in Oregon a law student who couldn't buy a keg of beer broke a tavern boycott with the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Harry T. Evans, a University of Oregon law student, wrote a thesis after distributors in Eugene, Ore., told him he had to buy a $5 one-day license to purchase a keg. He mailed the thesis to federal officials, who investigated and brought charges against the Oregon Restaurant and Beverage Association and two of its officers. They were convicted of unreasonable restraint of trade and commerce for campaigning to boycott beer distributors who sold kegs to the public.

More good news for the little guy. Columbus, Ohio, is undertaking a $50,000 project to provide shower rooms, locker rooms and a meeting room to boost morale of its 350 sanitation workers after a tough day gathering the city's trash.

The costs of electricity, telephone service, milk and bread have gone up in Nashville, Tenn., but there's a break for the taxpayer—the city's $15-a-year auto registration fee has been voted into oblivion by the Metropolitan Council.

Unwelcome Comment

CLINTON, Ont. (AP)—When Mrs. Ken Williams found that 14 of 40 in her kindergarten class had never seen a cow, she took the children into a farmer's cow barn. Then she told them to write down what cows were all about. One recorded: "Cows are really big—almost as big as our teacher."

No Sign of Increased Infiltration by Enemy

DONG HA, Vietnam (AP)—Despite a rash of action along the demilitarized zone, allied commanders still expect South Vietnam's northern frontier to remain as relatively calm as it has been for the past 10 months. They say there is no indication of increasing enemy infiltration through the six-mile-wide buffer zone nor have there been signs of North Vietnamese troops massing for any new offensive.

Intelligence officers for the South Vietnamese 1st Division say they have located only three enemy battalions with some 1,000 soldiers operating along the southern rim of the DMZ. These battalions have split up into companies or platoons "to harass us and keep an eye on us," one officer said.

American Marines just south of the zone fought hard battles Thursday and again Sunday in which 27 Americans and 138 North Vietnamese were reported killed. But Marine and South Vietnamese officers characterized these fights as attacks of opportunity and did not foresee any sustained action.

They added, however, that Quang Tri Province, which borders the DMZ, is still threatened by an estimated four to six North Vietnamese regiments—perhaps 20,000 men—stationed along the northern edge of the DMZ.

On guard against them are about 22,000 allied troops: nearly 15,000 U.S. Marines of the 3rd Marine Division who patrol from Con Thien west, 2,000 South Vietnamese troops manning the 12 miles from Con Thien to the coast, and 5,000 armored soldiers of the U.S. army's 5th Mechanized Division based at Quang Tri City as a reconnaissance and reaction force.

There has been speculation that American strength will be reduced, forcing a redeployment of some of the units in the four-regiment South Vietnamese 1st Division. Maj. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, division commander, says his troops "could handle the situation easily," provided there is no more infiltration of North Vietnamese army units.

While no major assault is expected along the DMZ, intelligence officers say prisoners and captured documents indicate that the Communist command "wants to have some victories" to commemorate the anniversary Aug. 18 of the start of the revolt against French rule in 1945.

Allied units have used the current lull to push pacification and resettlement of peasants displaced by the war. Commanders say they have virtually destroyed local guerrilla units and the civilian population is more secure than at any time in recent years.

Dismayed By Delay In Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says he hopes the Soviet Union is not stalling on the start of strategic arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union. "I'm disappointed at the delay," Mansfield said. "I hope it isn't a stall on the part of the Soviet Union."

Mansfield and Sen. John Sherman Cooper, both prominent in the fight against President Nixon's Safeguard missile defense plan, said in interviews that negotiations should begin soon to forestall any new cycle in arms competition.

Cooper said he did not think Safeguard approval would interfere with the opening of talks with the Russians, but that it could complicate matters once the negotiations begin.

"I understand the United States is urging the commencement of talks," said the Kentucky Republican. "We've had no response from the Russians as to the dates when they would begin."

Mansfield said he is satisfied with the administration's position on the projected arms talks.

"I would say that we're ready to sit down right now," he said. "The only fault I'd find is that it has taken an awfully long time."

The Montana senator noted that Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin had been expected back in Washington in mid-July, but his return has been delayed by illness.

Pop Singers Help Spread Drug Use

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Some pop groups are to blame for the use of drugs among young people, American singer Bobby Vee said today.

Vee, 26, arrived in Sydney for a night club season. He said he believes the drug situation would not have deteriorated if some pop singers had not publicly condoned drugs such as marijuana.

"I smoke only cigarettes. I suppose I'm a bit of a square," he said.

The first thing he said in a speech to state chief justices here was that he had been advised by "men experienced in our craft" to "never do more than clear my throat without a prepared text."

Burger, it is becoming clear, will say whatever he has to say to the press in writing. Evidently he feels that is the best way to make sure he isn't misquoted or misunderstood.

Perhaps more important, he apparently won't be saying much to the press. Newsmen maintaining a commercial kennel. He said that he keeps the dogs as a hobby and that his real business is a second hand goods store at Saline and Engineer.

Monday Shull told The Democrat that he would make a special appeal to the City Council at its next meeting, Aug. 18, to reconsider or table the ordinance which Fritz is now preparing.

"I plan to have anyone interested in the subject there to help me make the appeal," Shull said.

Shull also said Monday that Art Bethke, city sanitation officer, had inspected the kennel Saturday and "approved it." Bethke was not available for comment Monday.

Shull said "many of the things said at police court were untrue and can be proved so by anyone interested."

Nixon

fects," he told Congress, "they cannot be purchased cheaply, or by piecemeal efforts."

With the establishment of his "new approach" to welfare, Nixon said the nation's antipov- erty agency, Office of Economic Opportunity, will concentrate on finding new ways of opening economic opportunity to those who are able to work.

"Rather than focusing on income support activities," he said OEO "must find means of providing opportunities for individuals to contribute to the full extent of their capabilities and in developing and improving these capabilities."

In a presidential statement also issued today, Nixon gave the OEO the highest priority to develop a new spirit of "social pioneering to better the lot of all Americans."

The President said a nation that can marshal its resources to travel to the moon should make better use of its knowledge and power in solving social problems on earth.

And he assigned the role of innovating ideas for social progress to the OEO, the nation's antipov- erty agency.

The President called for reorganization of the OEO in a statement issued at his California home as a follow-up to his welfare policy disclosure in a nationwide television-radio broadcast Friday night.

He approved of continued OEO operation of the VISTA program — Volunteers In Service To America — because of this agency's special identification with the problems of the poor.

To set the "new directions" for OEO, Nixon proposed:

1—A new office of program development to launch experimental efforts to find "new ways of bringing services to the poor..." and to find new methods of increasing their business and employment opportunities.

2—Reorganizing and strengthening the present OEO Office of Planning, Research and Evaluation. "It will seek to establish more precise standards for measuring performance (of projects) than OEO used in the past," and will provide regular independent appraisals of federal social programs.

3—Strengthening of the Office of Health Services to try to improve methods of delivering health services to the poor.

4—Strengthening of the Office of Legal Services, giving it "central responsibility for programs which help provide advocates for the poor in their dealing with social institutions."

5—Setting up a new office of program operations to improve the quality of field operations at state and local levels. Nixon said training and technical assistance funds will be increased for those who run OEO-supported programs and he plans increased allocations for state economic opportunity offices.

It was Nixon's first work day at his west coast White House and he combined welfare policy pronouncements with foreign policy talks.

He also was dispatching to Congress the first of three messages spelling out his $4 billion family assistance welfare program.

OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld, a former Illinois Republican congressman, came to Nixon's oceanfront estate to discuss the new role the President has announced for the agency.

Nixon outlined his welfare plan broadly in a nationwide television speech Friday night.

His key welfare adviser, Daniel P. Moynihan, predicted Sunday that Nixon will give domestic problems priority over foreign affairs.

Nixon had problems on both fronts under discussion here, including the important decision expected some time this month on whether to order further troop withdrawals from Vietnam.

The President also plans to announce this week nomination of a Supreme Court Justice to replace Abe Fortas, who resigned amid criticism of his dealings with a financier's foundation.

Nixon awaited a report from Secretary of State William P. Rogers, returning from talks with Asian leaders in Japan, South Korea, Nationalist China, Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand.

The President also sent for Ambassador Henry Byroade, his newly named emissary to the Philippines, to come in for talks on the way to his new post in Manila.

Cocktail Lounge Destroyed in Blast

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An explosion and fire destroyed a cocktail lounge in the 31st and Prospect area early Sunday. No one was injured, although dozens of residents were jolted and awakened.

Three adults and four young children escaped unharmed from an apartment building damaged on the west side of the lounge.

Firemen said it might be several days before the cause of the explosion is determined.

A 1969 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Archie H. Hughes, Broadway Arms Apartments, and a 1967 Pontiac driven by Jerry W. Lauderberger, 2400 West Third, were involved in an accident at Broadway and Grand at 9:22 p.m. Saturday. Both vehicles were headed west. The front of the truck and the rear of the car were damaged.

A child apparently was the guilty party in an accident at 611 West 16th, at 6:15 p.m. Saturday.

The cars involved were a 1966 Chevrolet, parked by Earlene Joan Walz, 611 West 16th, and a 1959 Ford originally parked by Geneva Hanna, 612 West 16th.

The Hanna car rolled into the Walz car while Mrs. Hanna was out of the car. She said a child she left in the car apparently shifted the car out of gear and allowed it to roll. Damage was minor, according to the report.

Broadway and Limit was the scene of a two-car accident at 10:23 p.m. Saturday. Involved were a 1969 Chevrolet driven by Karen J. Priesmeyer, Route 3, and a 1968 Cadillac driven by C. L. Wallington, 600 Griffith. The right front of the Chevrolet and the left side of the Cadillac were damaged.

Fluoridation Vote Is Set for Tuesday

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Voters will decide Tuesday whether the municipal water supply will be fluoridated.

The issue is the only question in a special election expected to draw as many as 15,000 ballots.

Eleven years ago a similar move was defeated at the polls by about a 2-1 ratio.

Six Children Die as Frame House Burns

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Six children died in a fire which destroyed a two-bedroom frame house three miles south of here Sunday.

The bodies have been taken to Little Rock for an autopsy.

However, authorities said foul play was not suspected. The children were identified as Randy Lee Ketcherside, 10; Connie Louise, 7; Aaron, 5; Shella, 4; Dennis, 2, and Michael, 1.

Sheriff Otto Brinkman said Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray Ketcherside, parents of the children, escaped the blaze unharmed but were treated for shock at a local hospital.

Cause of the fire was undetermined. The fire was apparently started at 4:30 a.m., the sheriff said, but the first report to law enforcement authorities came about one hour later.

The house had burned to the ground by the time firefighters and authorities arrived.

Five Policemen Are Wounded In Gun Battle

DETROIT (AP) — A 35-year-old former mental patient today faced charges of assault with intent to commit murder in a gun fight that wounded five policemen and a neighbor.

The gunman, Lynn W. Blackwell, was held under guard in the psychiatric ward of Detroit General Hospital after a policeman talked him into surrendering Sunday.

Police said Blackwell, upset after his wife and six children moved out last week, barricaded himself in his house on the northwest side with a new shotgun he had just purchased, then exchanged gunfire with officers for a half hour.

The outburst started when pellets splintered windows in the home of Edison Favors, 46, across the street from Blackwell's two-story, frame house in the quiet, tree-lined neighborhood.

Favors trailed a cruising police car.

As he stood on his front lawn talking to a patrolman, officers said, two shotgun blasts hit Favors and he slumped to the ground.

Another blast felled the patrolman. Four other officers — two of them trying to pull wounded comrades to safety — were hit.

Yablonski Claims Victory in Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph A. Yablonski claimed successful nomination today in his bid to unseat W. A. (Tony) Boyle as president of the United Mine Workers of America.

Yablonski, the highest-ranking UMW official ever to challenge Boyle, said he had been nominated by at least 85 locals — 35 more than the number required by the union's constitution.

Nominations closed today. UMW headquarters, which has had little comment on Yablonski's candidacy since he announced it May 29, had no immediate comment on his claim, although it was expected to announce later who the candidates are for the Dec. 9 election.

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo. (AP) — A former National Guard outfit from Quincy, Ill., arrived at this post Sunday from Vietnam and is undergoing deactivation.

The 103 men are expected to be on their way to Quincy within five to eight days. The unit was sent to Vietnam after it was federalized in May, 1968, in connection with the Pueblo crisis.

The men were flown to Whiteman Air Force Base, then brought to Ft. Leonard Wood by highway. They were greeted by more than 50 families.

Watchmen System Proposal Forwarded

SEATTLE (AP) — A system of neighborhood watchmen, to serve as an auxiliary to the Police Department, was proposed Monday for Seattle by Secretary of State Lud Kramer, a candidate for mayor here.

Kramer said the program, similar to one about to be tested in New York City, would involve neighborhood residents trained and equipped by the city. Half a watchman's salary would be paid by the city and half by neighborhood anticrime councils, he said.

Sacred Heart Pastor, Priest To New Posts

Father Growney Father Miller

Announcement was made at all masses at Sacred Heart Church yesterday of the resignation of the pastor, the Rev. Lawrence Growney, effective immediately.

Reasons for Father Growney's resignation, according to the Rev. Ronald Hoenninger, associate pastor, were personal, and the former pastor has already undertaken a new assignment.

Father Hoenninger, who made the announcement at the directive of Father Daniel Schaefer, superior of the Midwest province of the Fathers of the Precious Blood, also announced that Father William Miller, associate pastor and chaplain of Sacred Heart grade school for the past five years, has been reassigned to Centerville, Iowa. He will be replaced by Father Ronald Moorman, who will arrive on Aug. 27, as will a new pastor, as yet unnamed.

Murder

socialite of the Folger coffee family of San Francisco. She was dead of stab wounds in the chest.

—Voytek Frykowski, 37, Polish screen producer and writer, a friend of Polanski, dead of stab wounds in the body and extremities and a gunshot wound in the back.

—Steven Parent, 18, of suburban El Monte, apparently a friend of Garretson, dead of multiple gunshot wounds in the chest.

The bodies, strewable about the estate in fashionable Benedict Canyon, were found by a maid who ran down the road screaming: "There's bodies and blood all over the place."

Los Angeles coroner, said the victims' wounds would not have caused instant death.

Miss Folger, clad in a nightgown, was sprawled on the lawn. About 100 feet away lay Frykowski, shot in the back. Parent sat at the wheel of his car, its transmission set in drive and the brake released.

"We have to assume there was an attempt to escape, when we find the bodies the way we did," said Helder.

One of the clues in the case came out a blank. A red Ferrari sports car, missing from Miss Tate's home, and suspected to have been stolen by the killer, turned up at a repair shop where police said a member of the household left it earlier in the week.

Miss Tate's grief-stricken husband arrived in Los Angeles Sunday and went into seclusion. Officers said they would not be able to question the distraught Polanski immediately.

Friends said news of the slayings reached him at a dinner party in a London apartment where moments before the guests had been discussing the death of a friend.

Polanski had remarked: "Eeny, meeny, miney, mo. Who will be the next to go?" Then the phone rang, the message came.

GOOD FARMING with Lloyd Lewellen

Pettis County
Farm Management Agent

Four people from this area are scheduled to attend the cattle feedlot tour to Western Kansas and Colorado the last week in August. Attending from this area are: Bob Curtis, W. R. Green, Paul Siegel and myself.

Fall Army Worms

Several farmers have called in the past week about the severe damage done in the whorl of their late planted corn. If you have not been out in the corn field, if it was planted late, you should go soon because these army worms are killing the corn which is not sprayed in some fields.

If you are a dairy farmer and intend to put this corn in the silo, the only chemical you can spray on is Sevin. The rate of Seven should be 1.5 lbs. per acre of actual chemical. Plug up every other nozzle and spray down in the whorl. Be sure to get on fifteen gallons of water per acre. If your sprayer has been last used to spray Atrazine and you were using 20 gallon to the acre, by plugging up every other nozzle you would still be getting on only 10 gallon per acre. It is very important to get run down inside the whorl where this worm is eating.

If this is corn going into silage for beef cattle you can use Toxaphene, Endrin or DDT.

Corn Problems

Corn varies from thrifty rapidly growing fields to yellow to brown and stunted and dying fields or parts of fields. The reasons for some of these problems are fairly obvious. Too much rainfall, late planting and continuing wet fields can be seriously harmful.

Along with the overly wet conditions, we can expect to see certain root rots and stalk rots getting started. In some locations stalk rots have been observed with a mushy looking deterioration of the lower stalk and a breaking over.

The disease is generally first recognized when plants fall over. The rotted part of the stalk is usually confined to a single internode just above the soil line. The diseased area is brown, water-soaked, soft and collapsed. If the rotted area has a somewhat fetid odor, bacteria are likely involved.

Herbicide chemicals have caused some injuries to corn this year under certain conditions, and have resulted in distorted growth. These injuries to the corn frequently are accompanied by secondary invasion of disease organisms. Common smut is frequently abundant in corn injured by 2,4-D or other chemicals. It also often accompanies the rolled-top condition in corn that may, but not necessarily, be induced by herbicides.

Soybean Problems

The wet conditions in many fields of soybeans have been conducive to a number of root rots that thinned stands. However, happily there are many good looking soybean fields. Soybeans are resourceful in adapting to different environmental conditions.

Herbicide injuries this year have been somewhat different than last year. In certain cases it appeared that the materials were leached into the root zone causing injury and sometimes death to soybean plants.

Root and stem lesions caused by Rhizoctonia and other organisms have been observed in many of the soybean plants that apparently sustained chemical injuries. It is fairly difficult to evaluate whether disease made plants more susceptible to the chemicals or if the chemical injuries made the plants more susceptible to disease attack. There are some important relationships of which we should know more.

A number of reports have been received of circular spots in fields with prematurely dying soybeans. Brown-colored lesions are apparent on the stems. We have found the pycnidia of the pod and stem blight fungus. Usually we expect to see the injuries by this disease a bit later as soybeans are maturing, but premature killing of the plants and reduced yields are common in our central U.S. soybean growing area. It is likely that abundant moisture and high humidity have accentuated these infections.

Alfalfa Problems

Reports and specimens of alfalfa plants that have been injured have been fairly abundant. Alfalfa does not like "wet feet" and has been hurt by the saturated soils in many places. Imposed on these stress conditions are the aggravation of the existing crown and root rots that help to hasten death. We have encountered several alfalfa specimens with root rots starting down in the ground and proceeding upward. Others show the beginning of the rot in the crown area and proceeding downward. Either way, the result is a dead alfalfa plant.

The question has come up of reseeding spots in alfalfa fields where stands have been decimated. If the areas dry up sufficiently so that a desirable seedbed can be obtained, reseeding this fall may be economically expedient. There is always a hazard to young alfalfa seedlings in the environment of old alfalfa plants as the inoculum level of some disease organisms will be rather high and "infant mortality" can also be high. Some protection to the alfalfa in early stages may be secured by using a fungicide seed treatment (thiram or captan, etc.) Also, very important is the use of high quality adapted seed to obtain vigorous young plants.

Mid-Summer Management

Between spring planting rush and the fall harvest season is a good time to solve some problems faced throughout the year. Last winter's problems of mud, feed handling, and livestock care should be reviewed and plans made to reduce these problems before the next winter's feeding season, says John Morehead, Area Farm Management Agent.

Feed storage and handling problems likely to be encountered can be reduced now before fall harvest season with some plans made and carried out.

New lot fencing, handling corrals, feeding arrangements, lot layout and drainage in livestock feeding areas can be planned and completed before crop harvest. To get the most out of new improvements plan carefully, consider the total farm operation, which improvements will provide the greatest returns per dollar invested and pay returns quickly. Then decisions made for kinds of materials, location of facilities, and shopping for least cost, and the many other decisions must follow. It takes time planning and using all the good ideas you can adopt to get the most for your efforts. Your Extension Center can help, call on your Agents.

Household Insects

During the late summer, homes may be invaded with insects and related pests, such as crickets, roaches, and millipedes, in large numbers. Some of them, crickets for example, may cause damage to some of the contents, but most of them are just a nuisance. Remember, everything has to be somewhere and this is the case for most of the insects in houses during the summer. Many of them are attracted to the lights at night and get in through small openings.

As an aid in preventing the crawling insects from entering the house, use sprays containing 1 percent Baygon, 2 percent chlordane, 5 percent DDT, or 0.5 percent dieldrin. Apply to the point of runoff to the foundation, window wells, around doors and windows, and any other cracks or crevices where the insects might enter.

Those insects that do enter the house may be controlled with residual sprays of 1 percent Baygon, 2 percent chlordane, 5 percent DDT, 0.5 percent diazinon, 5 percent dieldrin, or 1 percent ronnel (Korlan) lightly applied along baseboards, corners, closets, under sink and lavatory, and in the basement corners, floor-wall and ceiling-wall junctions. Do not spray any surface upon which food comes in direct contact and DO NOT apply where children and pets may contact the treated area.

Repeated applications of pyrethrin or dichlorvos household aerosol sprays may also be used to control those insects that get into the house. Promptly sweep or vacuum up the dead insects and dispose of them.

In Ranks

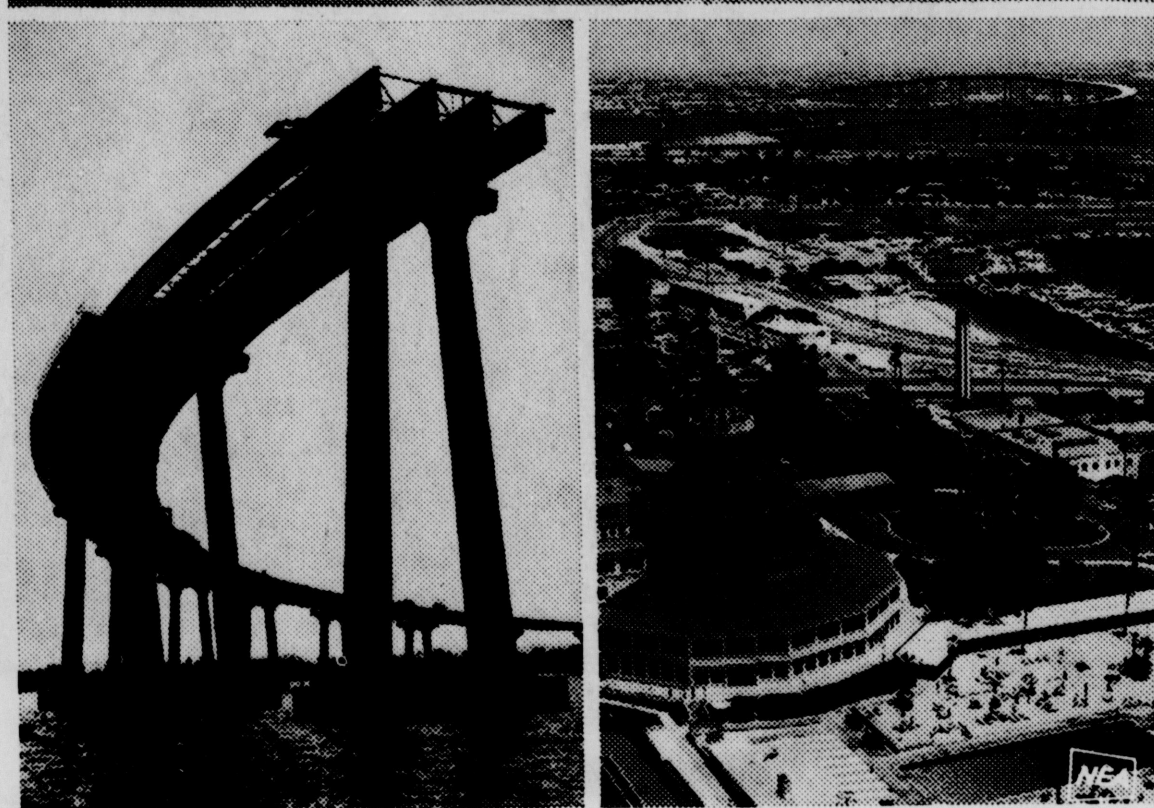

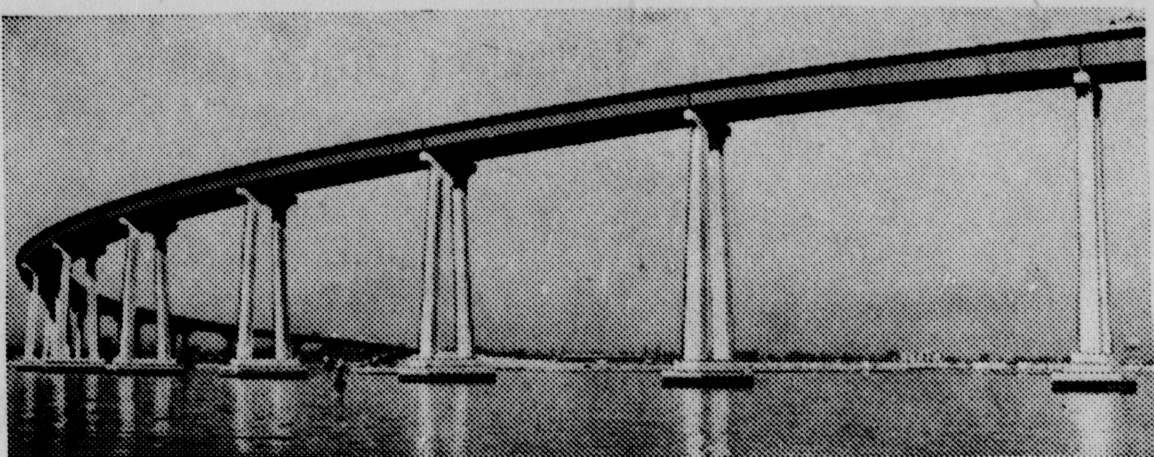

U.S. Air Force Staff Sergeant Leo Watson, son of Mrs. Gracie Hill, Knob Noster, is on duty at Phu Cat AB, Vietnam.

Sergeant Watson, a fire protection supervisor, is in a unit of the Pacific Air Forces. Before his arrival in Southeast Asia, he was assigned to Whiteman AFB, Mo. The sergeant attended Hamlet (N.C.) High School. His wife, Pauline, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Werneke, Knob Noster.

One of the Army badges that soldiers wear with special pride is the Combat Infantryman Badge. It was awarded to Private First Class Charles E. Sousey in Vietnam, July 7.

Pfc. Sousey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Sousey, Tipton, is assigned as a grenadier in Company C, 3rd Battalion of the 4th Infantry Division's 8th Infantry near Pleiku.

The 20-year-old soldier entered the Army in November, 1968, completed basic training at Ft. Leonard Wood, and was stationed at Ft. Ord, Calif., before arriving in Vietnam last April.

Artistic Bridge

Spanning San Diego Bay, this new $38-million bridge links the California cities of Coronado and San Diego. Reportedly one of the most beautiful bridges in the world, a team of specialists in aesthetic design participated in the planning to make

Plant Poisoning Cases Highest in Two Months

Most plant poisonings occur from July to September. They occur most often in small children, who, because of their size and tendency to put leaves and berries into their mouths, can receive fatal doses of poisons from a variety of plants. Most plants listed as poisonous, however, are not highly poisonous to adults, and plants around the home should be treated with care, not scare.

By observing a few precautions, and teaching them to children, most poisonous plants will present no great hazard. Plants of potential danger should not be within reach of children too small to understand the hazard.

Never eat any part of an unknown plant either in your yard or in the woods or field. If there is the slightest doubt as to the poisonous nature of a plant, avoid it.

Do not allow children to pick anything in the yard. Warn them of the danger of berries. Many are not poisonous, but discourage them from eating any ornamental or wild berries. Never make a tea from wild or unknown plants. Check with a known authority before making a tea from any weed or herb. Deaths have resulted from drinking tea made from the leaves or pods of jimson weed because it was once believed to relieve asthma and other ailments.

Make sure that any plant or herb in cooking is properly identified and known to be safe.

Never allow children to play with, or chew on seeds. Many seemingly harmless seeds may be poisonous. The seeds from five apples (about 50 seeds) can cause poisoning if chewed and digested.

Almost everyone is familiar with the very poisonous qualities of oleander, castorbean seeds, some mushrooms, and the irritating quality of poison ivy. There are many additional plants with poisonous properties.

Here are a few of the plants found around the home that have some poisonous characteristics: All parts of azaleas and rhododendrons, bulbs of daffodils and hyacinths, all parts of dieffenbachia and elephant ear, leaves of poinsettia, leaves and roots of bleeding heart, leaves and seeds of foxglove, all parts of iris, all parts of lily-of-the-valley except the ripe fruits, morning glory seeds, peony roots, snowdrop bulbs, leaves of snow-on-the-mountain, all green parts of the potato plant, all green parts of the tomato plant except the green fruit, the leaf blade of rhubarb, leaves, seeds and twigs of cherry and peach, horsechestnut seeds, leaves and fruit of common privet, bark and roots of the tree of heaven, berries of holly, and all parts of yew except the fleshy pulp of the fruit.

Insecticides Can Stop Annual Insect 'Invasion'

There is no need to go out and hand pick insects if your trees and shrubs have become the "neighborhood feeding grounds." Insecticides are available that will eliminate most of the pests you are likely to find. Applying them at the proper time will increase their effectiveness, says Vic Carothers, Extension Area Agronomy Agent for Henry, Johnson, Lafayette, and Pettis Counties.

A few insecticides will combat most common insect problems on shrubs and trees. Malathion and carbaryl are basic to the home gardener's insecticide collection. Among the many other good materials available for insect control are DDT, diazinon, lindane, toxaphene, and dicofol.

Some of the pests that cause the most concern are aphids, bagworms, leaf feeding caterpillars, tree borers, gall insects, web worms, scales, and spider mites.

Aphids may multiply throughout the summer, and sprays applied as new infestations appear will control them.

Bagworms are easiest to kill just as the small worms are first noticed. Sprays in early to mid-June are most effective.

Leaf feeding caterpillars should be sprayed as they appear. Carbaryl, DDT, or toxaphene are most often used for their control. Repeated applications of these chemicals may result in a build-up of spider mites. Thorough coverage of the leaves is necessary to control them. Materials such as malathion or dicofol may be used. Two or three applications at weekly intervals may be necessary.

Tree borers are a common problem. Injury to the tree trunk with the lawn mower or during transplanting invites them. Sprays of the trunk at monthly intervals from May through August with a material such as DDT will help prevent infestation.

Gall insects cause much concern although damage to the tree is usually slight. After the swellings on the leaves have formed it is too late to get control. Apply a material such as carbaryl just as the buds swell next spring, but before the tiny leaves have emerged.

Webworms may be sprayed as the webs appear. Sufficient force must be used so that the spray is driven into the webs.

Scale insects should be sprayed with a dormant oil before the plant buds show green. In early June, as the eggs hatch, 2 or 3 insecticide sprays should be applied at weekly intervals.

Use insecticides at the proper concentration, at the proper time, and with the proper care, and they will help you have a more beautiful landscape with a minimum of work.

Vaughn Works For A Degree

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The title of the Ph. D. dissertation: "A Historical Study of the Influence of the House Committee on Un-American Activities on the American Theater 1938-1958." The candidate for doctor of philosophy: Robert Vaughn. Offbeat casting, indeed. This is the same Vaughn who zapped enemy agents as "The Man from U.N.C.L.E.," the shady politico who bugged Steve McQueen in "Bullitt." He is in real life a scholar, and if his studies continue on schedule, he can be addressed as Dr. Vaughn after next January's commencement at the University of Southern California.

"I have finished four chapters of my dissertation and have four more to go," the actor reports. "I should be able to finish by November—provided another picture doesn't come up. I hope one doesn't, because I'd like to finish up. This academic sword of Damocles has been hanging over my head long enough."

Vaughn's higher learning began at the University of Minnesota, where he spent his freshman year in 1951-52. He moved here and continued studying at Los Angeles City College and L.A. State, now called California State at Los Angeles, from which he received his B.A. in 1956. During this time his acting career was blossoming, and he had less time for studies.

But he persisted, and in 1960 was awarded his master's degree in theater arts at Cal State. In 1964, he enrolled in U.S.C. Communications department to begin work toward a Ph.D. His dissertation almost met with disaster.

"I took all of my research with me to Czechoslovakia last year while I was making 'The Bridge at Romagen,'" he related. "When the Russians invaded, the film company had to get out in a hurry. I left all of my material behind. Fortunately, all of it was shipped back to me."

He began his work all over again last November and started writing the dissertation in London while filming "The Mind of Mr. Soames" and "Julius Caesar."

How did he choose his subject? "There was no special situation that caused it," he said. "It grew quite naturally out of my academic background in mass communications, together with my interest in politics."

The dissertation covers a stormy period in the American theater, when politicians attacked noted stage figures as being Red or pinkish. Vaughn, who has been active in liberal causes, said he has approached the subject with no point of view and will draw no conclusions from material he presents.

Prison Reform Is Urged

DALLAS (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger called today for broad reform of America's prison system.

"Let us never forget," he said, "that in His teaching the redemption of sinful men has a high place."

Burger urged the American Bar Association to lead a re-examination of prisons, parole and probation systems and the education and training of prisoners.

"We must explore more fully a limited confinement and work release," he said, in a prepared speech at the 92nd annual meeting of the ABA.

Burger said he had not settled on any particular program of reform. "All I have," he said, "is the profound conviction, which I believe most judges of this country share, that there must be a better way to do it."

More than 5,000 lawyers and judges are attending the ABA's annual meeting. Among the major topics to be considered in sessions through Thursday are lawyer ethics, the system of compensating auto accident victims and strikes in the transportation industry.

William T. Gossett, the ABA president, opened the meeting with the warning that the rule of law may face "graver and more pervasive danger" now than at any time since the Civil War.

"The repetitious clamor for law and order is not enough," he said in his prepared speech.

"The object of both law and order is justice. Justice presupposes the right of all men freely to achieve the best and most within them, subject only to the same right of others."

"The law should be an avenue of progress and not a fence of restraint."

They're High Risk Jobs

The plight of a college president today is like that of a man who decided to make his home in the quiet country, away from the tension and conflicts of the city, only to find himself smack in the path of a new freeway.

College presidents, who once presided benignly over peaceful companies of fellow scholars in the tranquil groves of academe, have been run over right and left by the juggernaut of student unrest. One, Courtney Smith of Swarthmore College, was literally a casualty. He died of a heart attack brought on by a violent confrontation with militant black students demanding special programs.

In the space of a few weeks this year, the presidents of five large state universities resigned, pleading the equivalent of "combat fatigue." Something like 80 to 100 four-year colleges and universities are currently looking for new presidents.

The high rate of attrition among prexies is also reflected in the drop in average tenure. In 1960, the average was 10 years; in 1968, it was just under six.

There is a lot of talk these days about a "new breed" of college president being needed, the type who will stand up to students—in a word, with "backbone."

But this kind of talk reveals some fundamental misconceptions about the actual powers of a president and the way most colleges and universities are governed, cautions one college head.

"The president can have all the 'backbone' in the world," says Dr. John A. Logan Jr., president of Hollins College in Virginia, "but if his faculty fails to assume its rightful share of the responsibility, an appearance of institutional spinelessness is inevitable."

No president will long exercise authority without the active support of the faculty, says Logan. Faculty power is a fact, especially in those areas of most intense concern to dissident students.

Faculties make the decisions about curricular matters which determine whether courses shall be "relevant," in the sense students are demanding, or whether good teaching shall come first. Faculty decisions determine whether to accept research contracts from what the radicals call the "military-industrial complex." The same can be said of giving academic credit for ROTC or establishing separate black studies departments.

Too often, he charges, faculties have vacillated in their support of a president faced with campus upheaval. Too often, a minority of student radicals has been abetted and encouraged by a few members of the faculty who have deserted scholarship to become polemicists and who have substituted dogma for reasoned argument.

We must never lose sight of the fact, he says, that the essence of the college or university is that it is the place, above all other places, where the truth is sought—and the truth is the necessary foundation for action in behalf of constructive social change.

But if anti-intellectualism is openly tolerated on campuses, he asks, how can we expect that it will not flourish in society at large?

"Our society needs our colleges and universities as never before, and our colleges and universities need leaders who are educators, not martinets. Good men will come forward if they can be assured of support from their faculties and from the moderate majority of students."

At the moment, however, in too many institutions, such support is at best passive and unorganized.

The consequence, says Logan, is that the considerable respect the nation's institutions of higher learning have enjoyed is declining, and with it much of their potential as a humanizing influence.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Dirksen Losing Some of His Finesse

—Calling the Shot—

On July 22, Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson reported that President Nixon could count on 50 "hard" votes in a showdown in the Senate over the Anti-Ballistic Missile System. "If this secret count is correct," they wrote, "the President will win his first crucial test of strength with the Senate's liberal democratic leadership. For a 50-50 Senate vote on the ABM would be broken by Vice President Agnew."

The crucial test on the ABM—an amendment introduced by Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Me.—resulted in a 50-50 tie which was broken by the Vice President.

JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON—Senate GOP Leader Everett Dirksen, that delightful old political snake charmer, is losing his spell over his Republican charges. Of late, there has been a trace of gall in the famous ooze he spreads around the Senate.

He has shown an uncharacteristic petulance toward Republican freshmen who question his leadership and a sharpness toward reporters who criticize his actions. He has also lost the sublime subtlety with which he used to pull strings for his law clients in the Senate.

He has been rather obvious, for example, about seeking protection for the steel industry from foreign competition. His Peoria, Ill., law firm has represented such steel clients as U.S. Steel, Mid-States Steel & Wire, and Keystone Steel & Wire.

The truth is that our steel industry is in no great danger from foreign competition. The Japanese, whose mills are the biggest threat, have even agreed to a voluntary quota on steel shipments to the United States.

Nevertheless, Dirksen continues to pressure the White House not only for tighter import controls but for approval to set up U.S. steel mills overseas. This would permit the big steel companies to hire cheap foreign labor, thus slashing their labor costs.

In all his backroom activity for the steel interests, old Ev has also become uncommonly abusive toward the Japanese. He presses the cause of steel and his campaign against the Japanese every opportunity he gets to slip in an oil word.

During President Nixon's private report to congressional leaders on his overseas trip, for example, Dirksen found a chance to bring up his favorite subject. The President suggested that the time had come cautiously to lower East-West trade barriers.

"I want to interpose a difference," objected Dirksen in his best basso profundo. "Some countries

Reducing Diet?

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Wife Versus Parents

If a bridegroom is lucky, his bride and his parents will work out their new relationship in sweet peace and harmony. But what if they don't—and he is "in the middle"? Where do his duties lie?

By and large, the law says his wife comes first. Take this case:

A man was haled into court by his wife for non-support. In his defense, he explained:

"I give every nickel I make to my elderly parents. I just feel they need the money more than we do."

But the court decided this was no excuse, and ordered him to start taking care of his wife. The judge said she had first claim on his earnings.

A similar principle applies to the family domicile. A man accused his wife of desertion, after she walked out on him. But in court, she pointed out that she had good reason for leaving: her husband allowed his mother not only to live with them but also to run the household with an iron hand.

Ruling in the wife's favor, the court said:

"When a man marries and founds a new family, he assumes new duties. When these conflict with his former ties, they must be held paramount. The very existence of the family depends on this principle. Whatever his filial obligations may be, a man may not bring his mother to reside in his new home. That place belongs to the wife."

Nevertheless, the law does not insist on total estrangement of a husband from his parents.

In another case, a man brought his ailing, elderly mother into his home—partly for the sake of sentiment, partly for the sake of economy. However, it was his wife, not his mother, who had full charge of managing the household.

Was this husband falling down on his marital obligations? This time, a court said no. The judge said that, although a wife does rank as Number One, she still must make fair and reasonable adjustments to reality—to make the marriage work.

THE WELL CHILD®

Preschool Checkup Is Wise Move for Child

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

In a few weeks, some 17 million children will be going to school. Unless your school provides a physical checkup for all pupils, this is a good time for you to arrange for such an examination.

It is especially important that the vision and hearing be checked because any deficiency in these functions can make school a nightmare for your child and might even make a pupil with normal intelligence appear to be mentally retarded.

It is important, too, to make sure your child has had all the immunizing shots and boosters he should have. If he expects to go out for vigorous sports, a doctor's certificate may be required. In any case, you should get your doctor's O.K. before letting him participate in football, baseball, basketball or hockey.

If this will be your child's first year in school, it is essential that he be reassured that you are not trying to get rid of him and that you still love him very much but that school attendance is a part of growing up so "he can be smart like daddy."

If your child is to ride a school bus he must be taught to obey the rules designed for his safety. He should leave home in time to allow four or five minutes before the bus arrives. While waiting for the bus, he should stay back from the street and not indulge in horseplay with the other children. On the bus, loud shouting and roughhousing are out as they distract the driver. All talking should stop when the bus approaches a railroad crossing so the driver can listen for a train. Your child should keep his books and packages on his lap or on the floor under his seat—never in the aisle. He should never put his head or hand out the window. He should not tamper with the first-aid kit, emergency doors or other bus equipment and he should get off the bus quickly without crowding or pushing.

Oswald: "They used to talk about the perfect bridge player who never made a mistake. I have seen players who never admit making a mistake. The essence of winning at bridge or any other game must include a willingness to take chances. The so-called perfect player must wind up a loser against chance-taking experts."

Jim: "I agree to the extent that if someone tells me he just played perfectly, I ask him, 'How much did you lose?'"

Oswald: "My old friend, the late Albert Morehead, discussed this in a 1937 article that covered today's hand. I happened to be West and according to all rules to govern perfect bridge players should have opened my four of spades, the fourth best of my strongest suit."

Jim: "That lead would have given declarer three spade tricks. He would also have no trouble collecting two hearts, a diamond and three clubs and his game bonus. I see that a heart or club lead would also have given South his ninth trick."

Oswald: "No one could have criticized me for opening a spade or heart and there would be very little criticism if I had opened a club but I decided to lead my singleton queen of diamonds. My partner dropped the six. South took his king and led back the four. My partner ran off four quick diamond tricks and since I hung on to all my clubs, we wound up collecting a penalty."

Jim: "What was Morehead's comment?"

Oswald: "He pointed out that South had made a mistake and could never be a perfect player from then on!"

Nixon in Romania: An Ear Cocked Toward Moscow

By RAY CROMLEY

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

This reporter has good reason to believe that those who reported President Nixon stopped in Romania "to spit in the eyes of the Russians" were 180 degrees off course.

It is now becoming clear the President's trip to Communist Romania was an attempt to get some clue, however indirect and faint, to Moscow's intentions in easing East-West tension, in arms control, in solving the Middle East crisis and the war in Vietnam.

Moscow talks of rapprochement. The Russian leaders say publicly and privately they want arms control. They talk of a settlement in the Middle East that will prevent war. They hint time and again they will help to end the Vietnam war.

The Russians certainly are in a position to restrain some of the major participants in the Middle East confrontation.

Some administration analysts say Russian pressure on Hanoi made the 1954 settlement possible in Vietnam.

Obviously, no rational arms control is possible without a deep Soviet desire for an end to the arms race.

But though Russian statements have been reassuring, the President and his aides have some real worries as to Russian objectives.

White House sources say frankly that they do not consider that the Soviet Union has done all it can to bring the war in Vietnam to a conclusion or, as cochairman of the Laos Armistice Control Commission, to keep the Lao conflict confined.

Behind the scenes Soviet actions in the Middle East, in contrast to Moscow's public actions, do not seem aimed at bringing an honorable settlement in that region.

There are some real worries on the arms control proposals. Do the Russians want realistic arms control? Or are they interested in talks simply because they think such negotiations will bemuse the United States and rally American public opinion against a U.S. arms build-up while allowing them to strengthen their own offensive-defensive armaments?

It is a curious fact of life in dealing with the Soviet Union that you can't go up and ask the Soviet leaders what their intentions are. They don't operate that way. You must, instead, go through someone who knows them intimately, and yet is friendly with you, lay it out on the line and say:

What does Moscow really want? Do they desire a workable arms control system, realistic settlements in Vietnam and the Middle East and a genuine easing of East-West tension? If they do, are they likely to be thinking in terms which the United States could accept?

Or what do they want and where can we go from here?

The Romanians probably don't know the answers either. But because of their position in the Soviet bloc they may be able to guess or conjecture closer to the truth than we.

The thinking was that they might at least give Nixon some clues. It was a gamble that would not cost much. And further, if unable to find any answers or partial answers this trip, the door would be opened a little through better trade relations and with private meetings for further explorations through the Romanians and others.

It may be even that the Russians set Romania up to the invitation for Nixon to visit Romania. Moscow often prefers to start negotiations indirectly, get preliminaries and general understandings arranged through third parties before stepping in. But this is something we may never know.

Ma's Lazy (?) Summer

By BETTY CANARY

The curtain rises on our latest audience-involved play and we see an average mother and her average children on an average August morning. Offstage, the chorus is singing softly (to the tune of "Daisy, Daisy!") "Crazy, crazy! That's where we'll drive you to-daaaay..."

The children lean listlessly against the refrigerator and make smelly fingerprints as mother, awash to the ankles in puffed wheat and melted Popsicles, idly picks watermelon seeds off the table. Mother speaks.

"Well, children, what interesting plans do you have for today?"

Children drone together: "What'll we DO?" Mother: "Boy, I sure wish you weren't so average."

Children: "There's nothing to dooo!"

Mother: "I know! What about going swimming?"

Children: "Ah, who wants to go swimming?"

Mother (terse): "Lots of children who are less fortunate than you, that's who."

Children: "Oh, motherrrrr!"

Mother: "Play with one of your countless games?"

Children do not answer.

Mother: "Read one of your lovely books."

Children stare sullenly.

Mother (desperately): "Look through your souvenirs? Make cookies? Wash doll clothes? Play school? Set up the badminton set? Get out the darts? Put up the train set? Go to the library? Paste in your scrapbooks?"

Children (all together): "There's nothing to DO!"

Mother (wringing her hands): "Ride your bikes? Rollerskate? Write letters to grandmother?"

Children: Can't YOU think of something for us to do?"

Mother (crying now): "Make more Popsicles? Get out the skateboards? Practice with the hula hoop? Back yard picnic?"

Children: WE NEVER have anything to do!"

Mother (with sarcasm): "You could do a little work around here. Cut the grass, sweep the walks, shovel through your rooms..."

Children: You NEVER want us to have any fun!"

Mother: "I know! Why don't you set up a lemonade stand?"

Children (suspiciously): "What do we have to do?"

Mother (with enthusiasm): "It's lots of fun."

Children (dully): "O.K."

Day is done. In background children chatter happily, counting coins. Mother, elbow deep in lemon rinds, leans in exhaustion against the kitchen sink, mutters softly to herself. As curtain descends into a pile of broken pitchers, crumpled paper cups and demolished card table, we hear the children calling, "Gee, let's do this again tomorrow!"

US Air Strength Now Used in Laos

WASHINGTON (AP) — The full weight of American air power that was hitting North Vietnam until last fall's bombing halt has been diverted against enemy infiltration trails in Laos, Pentagon sources report.

The bombing had been going on for years but was intensified sharply after last Oct. 31 when then-President Lyndon B. Johnson decided to stop all attacks against North Vietnam.

Pentagon sources found it strange, therefore, that Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen should say that the Nixon administration might find it necessary "to do a bombing job" in Laos.

Dirksen, reporting last week on President Nixon's remarks to congressional leaders after touring Asia, said that Laos is becoming an infiltration point into South Vietnam.

"And if perchance we had to do a bombing job there, then of course, we would have to do it," the senator from Illinois told newsmen.

The United States has never acknowledged it publicly to avoid putting supposedly neutral Laos in an embarrassing diplomatic position, but American planes have been clobbering North Vietnam's supply routes and storage areas in Laos since early in the war.

The only official reference to this is an acknowledgment that the United States conducts "armed reconnaissance" flights in Laos at the request of the Laotian government and shoots back when fired upon.

Pentagon sources report the following statistics to illustrate what is now happening in the hidden war in Laos:

During last October, before Johnson directed the bombing halt to encourage Paris peace negotiations, U.S. planes were flying about 12,000 sorties a month against North Vietnam. Attacks in Laos were running about 4,700 sorties, or individual flights, monthly.

With the bombing halt, sorties in Laos nearly tripled to 12,800 in November.

In December, Laotian flights peaked at 15,000 sorties, declined to 14,000 last January and settled to an average thereafter of about 12,500 a month.

During the summer the monthly rate has dropped as low as 11,500 sorties. Pentagon officers say this is due to the bad weather of the monsoon season over Laos this time of year and not due to any slackoff in infiltration.

North Vietnam is estimated currently to be sending about 10,000 to 12,000 men per month into South Vietnam, virtually all via Laos.

Reporter Appointed By Nixon

BALTIMORE (AP) — On a slow news day back in 1948, a city editor told a young reporter, "Go take a look at the waterfront and see what's going on."

Last Saturday, that reporter who apparently found out what was "going on"—was named by President Nixon to the $40,000-a-year job as head of the federal Maritime Commission, subject to Senate approval.

Mrs. Helen Delich Bentley, veteran maritime editor of the Baltimore Sun, accepted the president's nod with the words, "I consider myself a real fighter on behalf of the American merchant marine."

"This industry is torn apart. I've tried very hard in the past to bring it together."

Should she be confirmed in the post, Mrs. Bentley would "pursue vigorously our goal of preserving and encouraging a healthy economy of which the shipping industry is a vital segment."

A first-generation American of Yugoslavian descent, she was graduated from the University of Missouri in 1944 and joined the Sun after brief stints with the United Press in Fort Wayne, Ind., and on the Lewiston, Idaho, Tribune.

Since then, she has been a prolific reporter, known to be tough yet fair.

Her foremost news beat was revealing the agreement between the U.S. and Cuba on the return of the Bay of Pigs prisoners. She uncovered the story after learning that a ship in Baltimore was preparing to carry "ransom goods" to Cuba.

Her column, "Around the Waterfront," is syndicated nationally, and for 14 years she wrote, directed and produced a weekly television program about the port of Baltimore and related subjects.

National Bar Exam Suggested

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The dean of a Missouri law school, Joe E. Covington, today suggested a national bar examination to qualify lawyers for practice instead of tests now given by each state.

Covington is dean of the School of Law at the University of Missouri-Columbia. He made his suggestion in a speech for the joint meeting of the National conference of Bar Examiners and the section on Legal Education of the American Bar Association.

Covington said such a national test would be similar to those administered doctors, dentists and accountants and said "A national organization administering a national test would be able to do extensive research and statistical studies which would result in a more scientifically structured bar examination."

He said state boards of bar examiners should be to formulate policy and make final decisions of admissions based on examination scores supplied by a central staff.

"Present examinations," he said, "are not uniform and are prepared and graded by practicing lawyers who are not experts in the field of testing."

Covington said he would still permit states to give a short examination on local law if they felt it was necessary.

He noted that some states have reciprocity agreements under which an attorney who has passed one state bar examination and practiced five years may be admitted to practice in a second state, but in some cases an attorney with years of experience is required to pass another state-administered test to qualify for court practice if he moves from his home state.

Poison Air Test Underway in City

NEW YORK (AP) — Researchers begin today asking pedestrians to blow into rubber bags and answer questions in a study aimed at finding out how much odorless, invisible, poisonous carbon monoxide gas the average New Yorker breathes walking beside heavy traffic.

"Operation Life and Breath" is sponsored by the New York Tuberculosis and Health Association and the city's Department of Air Resources.

Farmers' Situation 'Critical'

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — It makes sense, a Kansas cooperative leader told farmers today, "to do what is necessary to obtain a greater share of the price paid by the consumer for the farmer's product."

The speaker, J. H. Dean of Hutchinson, Kan., was a speaker before the Midcontinent and Missouri Farmers Associations. "Over the years we have seen many attempts to develop programs that would give stability to this country's agriculture," Dean said. "All of these programs have to some degree lent assistance to agriculture, but in spite of all that has been done, we find the farmer today facing the most critical situation he has ever faced."

He said Kansas farmer friends of his "tell me that if something doesn't change in this coast-price situation, they are going to be forced to leave the land" and join labor forces in other areas.

Dean said large corporations would move in and take over the land.

He is president of the National Federation of Grain Cooperatives and executive vice president of Far-Mar-Co, a regional grain marketing cooperative.

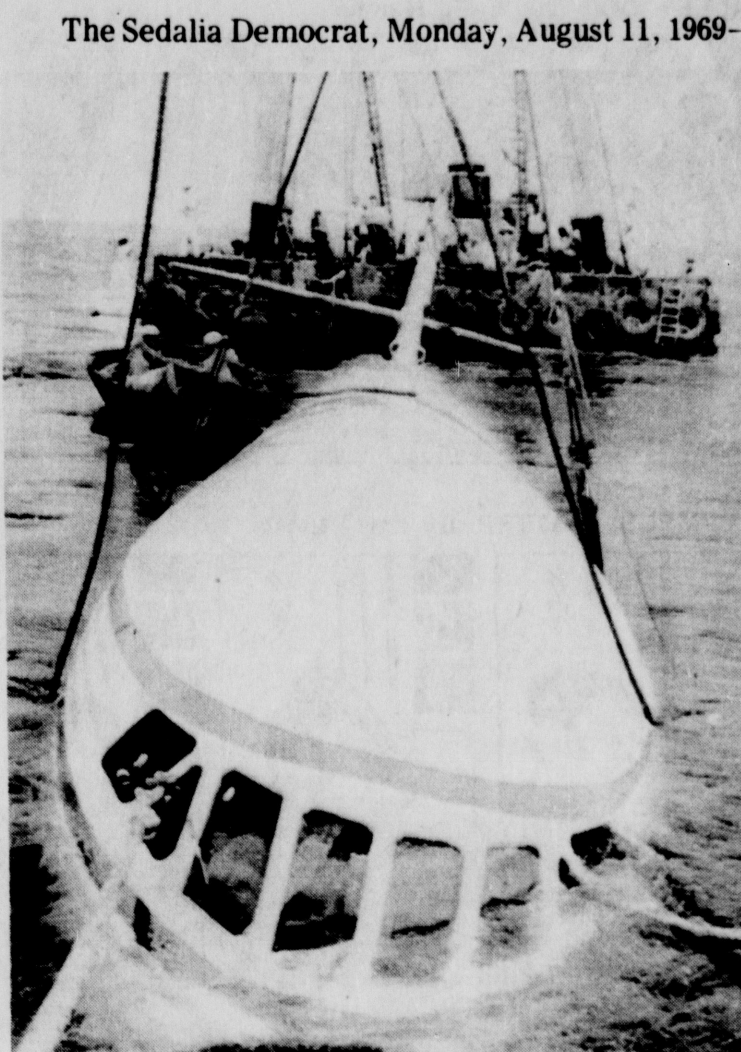

He said that when the government was acquiring stocks of grain through its commodity loan program the cooperatives were called upon to provide storage. "We now find ourselves in possession of these fine facilities and we have them fairly well paid for, but they are not needed for storage. To utilize the storage houses cooperatives must expand merchandising activities, Dean said. "We can no longer consider ourselves simply storers of grain, but rather merchandisers of grain."

61-Year-Old Woman Dies in 'Jump'

PONDER, Tex. (AP) — A 61-year-old woman making her 95th parachute jump plunged to her death late Sunday on a farm southwest of this north central Texas town.

Witnesses said the woman, Mrs. J. Porter Evans of Fort Worth, was a member of the Cowtown Sky Divers Club and had made 94 jumps in two years as a member of the group.

Witnesses said that both her main parachute and her reserve failed to open.

MPC System Given 'Face-Lift' by Army

SAIGON (AP) — In a surprise attempt to foil profiteers, the U.S. government today changed the military pay certificates—MPC—used in post exchanges and other government facilities.

A U.S. Command spokesman said it was too soon to know how much MPC was in circulation or to predict how much would not be turned in for new currency.

The change was the second in 10 months. A U.S. command spokesman said $153.3 million in MPC was in circulation at the time of the first change last Oct.

21, and all but $11 million of that was redeemed. The $11 million was a profit for the U.S. government.

MPC is used in Vietnam instead of U.S. bills in an attempt to keep the Viet Cong from getting hold of dollars. When the currency is changed, persons other than Americans who have the military money can't exchange it, and "this should deter unauthorized persons from accepting MPC in the future," the U.S. Command said.

Says More Experience Is Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Space Committee said today the United States should not commit itself at this time to a landing on Mars.

Rep. George P. Miller, D-Calif., said a decision about a manned trip to Mars should be delayed for 5 to 10 years while new technology is developed and more experience is gained in space flight.

By that time, he said, there is a chance Russia will join the United States in making a Mars flight an international expedition.

"It is worth waiting a few years to see if this will be possible," said Miller in a speech prepared for House delivery.

Coming from the chairman of the committee that will have to authorize funds for any space program, Miller's words should carry great weight with administration planners.

His comments appear to run counter to the expressed views of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Thomas O. Paine, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Agnew suggested shortly after the Apollo 11 launch that the next goal of the United States might be to send men to Mars by the end of the century. Paine said last Wednesday the space agency leaders were aiming for Mars as early as 1981.

Miller said the immediate goal of the U.S. space effort should be to continue to explore the moon to gain the experience of operating a base on another heavenly body.

Garbage Collectors End Their Strike

ST. LOUIS (AP) — About 450 St. Louis garbage collectors ended their strike today, but a city official said it would be two weeks before pickup schedules were back to normal.

Residents received two trash pickups weekly prior to the six-day strike by Teamsters Local 610. The garbagemen, assured of a 5 per cent pay raise, now must tackle tons of refuse which accumulated during their walk-out.

The refuse collectors were among 750 city employees who struck for higher wages. The walkout ended after Mayor A. J. Cervantes said he would call a special session of the aldermanic council to consider the wage hike.

Experience Helped

WAVERLY, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard says being a doctor helped him win a Cancer Society benefit wrestling match.

Sheppard, the former Cleveland-area osteopath who attracted widespread attention during his 10-year legal fight to clear himself of his first wife's murder, defeated Wild Bill Scholl Saturday night with a hold called the "hook."

Sheppard, who weighed 195, said his medical training was handy because the "hook" is applied by putting pressure on a jaw nerve. The 285-pound Scholl said the hold was illegal.

Sheppard, now practicing in suburban Columbus, had engaged in wrestling competition while in prison.

Mirror Takes Place Of Window Over Sink

By POLLY CRAMER

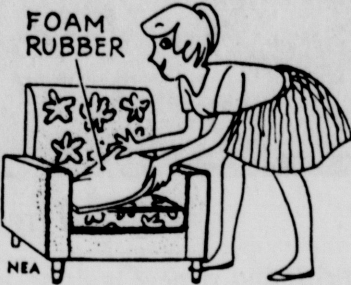

DEAR POLLY—I always said I would never buy a house that did not have a window over the kitchen sink but, of course, that is what we did. One cannot have everything and so many other things were desirable that I settled for it. I put a large mirror, about 23 inches in diameter, over the sink. It reflects the kitchen, dining area and, as it happens, a window directly opposite so it almost seems like there is a window there. With the exception of having to look at myself, this mirror really breaks the monotony of dishwashing.—MRS. L. E. T.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I hung a beautiful hand-embroidered white wool sweater to dry on an umbrella-type clothesline and it became stained in several places. Soaps for woollens have not cleaned it. What can I do?

Also, how can we keep spiders from nesting in aluminum window frames where they make such a mess?—HELEN

DEAR POLLY — Before making or even just putting on new slip covers, cut a piece of foam rubber sheeting (1/4- to 1/2-inch thick) to fit the bottom of the chair or sofa seat. Cut generously and push into all the crevices before fitting or putting on the covers. This keeps them from slipping. Any remaining pieces of foam also are better than rolled up material to keep the covers in place.—ANGELA

1969 Kansas City Chiefs Look Ready for Season

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Chiefs appear to be right on schedule as they prepare for the 1969 regular pro football season, but the same cannot be said of the Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

The Chiefs humbled the Lions,

38-13, Saturday night for their second straight exhibition victory and a 4-3 margin over NFL teams since the Chiefs bowed to the Green Bay Packers in the first inter-league game—the 1967 Super Bowl.

For the Chiefs, the dispatch of the Lions looked so routine it was deceiving. For the Lions, things looked disorganized.

The Lions only were in the game at one point — after they scored on a yard sneak by quarterback Bill Munson to cap an 80-yard drive late in the first quarter. That score left them trailing 8-6, since Detroit failed on a pass for a two-point conversion which the Chiefs had made earlier following Len Dawson's 39-yard pass to Frank Pitts.

From the 8-6 score, everything went the Chiefs' way, with the Lions offering little to contest Kansas City's domination.

Dawson completed a 32-yard scoring pass to Pitts, Emmett Thomas bolted 41 yards with a pass theft, and Jan Stenerud added field goals of 31 and 27 yards for a 28-6 halftime margin. The second half was little short of ho-hum boredom.

The Chiefs added a touchdown on reserve quarterback Mike Livingston's yard sneak to climax a 61-yard drive and rookie Bob Stein booted a 14-yard field goal to make it 38-6.

The Lions finally got on the board again with a Greg Landry-to-Earl McCulloch 23-yard pass with 18 seconds left in the game.

When the final statistics were totaled, the Lions held margins of 22-16 in first downs and 396-338 in total yardage passing and rushing. But what the stats didn't reveal at first glance was that the Chiefs scored so often that Detroit had the ball for 69 offensive plays to Kansas City's 48 and the Lions thus were bound to produce more yardage.

The yardage notwithstanding, the Chiefs trounced the Lions and even Detroit Coach Joe Schmidt reluctantly admitted it.

"Kansas City has a fine football team," Schmidt said. "We knew that before we came here. But it was only an exhibition, and things will be better for us. We wanted to see a lot of kids, and we did."

Chiefs' Coach Hank Stram called it "an excellent game, both offensively and defensively, for us."

"The purpose of an exhibition season," Stram added, "is to get a chance to look at everyone in action, and we were able to do that. The only player suited up who we didn't use was Otis Taylor."

Taylor, the Chiefs' regular flanker, still is hampered by a pulled groin muscle.

Only injury of note for Kansas City Saturday night was a bruised neck sustained by defensive tackle Ed Latham. His injury is not believed serious, although he left the game early and did not return.

The Chiefs next play the Cincinnati Bengals in Jackson, Miss., Saturday night.

Cards Roll But Royals Take Loss

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals won late but the Kansas City Royals started on the road to defeat early in afternoon baseball games Sunday.

The Redbirds scored four runs in the ninth inning to defeat the Giants 7-4 in San Francisco. Cleveland's Duke Sims socked a three-run homer in the first as the Indians bounced the Royals 8-1 behind the three-hit pitching of Sam McDowell.

San Francisco held a 3-2 advantage until Mike Shannon belted his ninth homer with one out in the ninth to tie the game.

Relief pitcher Jim Grant, who was credited with the victory then singled in Julian Javier. Lou Brock followed with a double to score Steve Huntz and Vada Pinson rounded out the scoring with a sacrifice fly.

The defeat was charged to Don McMahon who relieved starter Juan Marichal in the ninth.

In Cleveland, McDowell was overpowering as he struck out 14 Royals and didn't allow a hit until the sixth inning. The triumph ran McDowell's record to 13-10.

Today the Cards travel down the West Coast to play Los Angeles in a day game. Steve Carlton, who is 13-6 with St. Louis, is to pitch against Claude Osteen.

The Royals travel to Washington to play the Senators tonight. Jim Rooker, 2-9, is to take the mound for the Royals against Washington's Dick Bosman, 7-5.

Dixie 500 Crown Goes To Lee Roy Yarbrough

Victory Kiss

Lee Roy Yarbrough gets the usual kiss following his win in the "Dixie 500" at Hampton, Ga., Sunday. (UPI)

ATLANTA (AP) — Lee Roy Yarbrough, who rapidly is building a rags-to-riches story unequalled in sports, appears headed for stock car racing's first $200,000 season.

Yarbrough, 30, took a giant step toward that summit Sunday when he won the Dixie 500 mile classic at Atlanta International Raceway. It was his fifth major speedway victory of the season and ran his bankbook to $140,870, best ever for a NASCAR Grand National pilot.

There are six more 500-mile events and three of 250 miles on the NASCAR calendar. They carry more than $700,000 in prize money and Lee Roy said he plans to run at least seven of them.

Yarbrough, who warmed up for Sunday's record-setting Dixie 500 by driving more than 1,000 miles of tire tests Thursday and Friday at the new 2.5-mile speedway at Talladega, Ala., sped across the finish line almost 400 yards ahead of Ford teammate David Pearson. He averaged 133.001 miles per hour in setting the pace the final 150 miles before a skimpy crowd of 27,300.

Richard Petty, seeking his 100th career victory on major speedways, finished third. He and Pearson were in the same lap with Yarbrough. Charlie Glotzbach was fourth and Donnie Allison fifth as Ford cars swept the first five places for the first time this year.

At Watkins Glen, N.Y., rookie Mark Donohue of Media, Pa., streaked past leader Parnelli Jones on the 62nd lap and went on to win his third consecutive Trans-Am Sunoco-Camaro, was about one minute ahead of the 1963 Indianapolis 500 winner on the final lap of the 500-mile test when Jones spun off the track just before the finish line. Donohue averaged 107.33 miles an hour on the 2.3-mile pear-shaped track.

Don White started at the pole and lost his No. 1 spot only briefly.

ly en route to winning the 150-mile stock car race at State Fair Park in suburban Milwaukee, Wis. Driving a 1969 Dodge Charger, the Keokuk, Iowa speedster recorded a speed of 98.369 miles an hour in winning the $4,860 first prize. He finished 16 seconds in front of A. J. Foyt of Houston in a 1969 Ford Torino.

Buffalo Signs Simpson, Down Lombardi's 'Skins

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer
The rest of pro football, particularly the world champion New York Jets, had double reason today to pause and ponder over the Buffalo Bills, who won only a single game last season.

The Bills came up with two big accomplishments over the weekend. They stunned the Vince Lombardi-coached Washington Redskins 21-17 Friday night.

Twenty-four hours later, the Bills signed O.J. Simpson, the prize catch from the 1968 college ranks.

If the Bills can beat the Redskins without Simpson, what will they be able to do with the former Southern California All-America flash running in their backfield? With Simpson, do the Bills pose as a serious threat to the Jets' supremacy in the American League?

It's only the exhibition season, of course, and only time will provide the answers to these questions.

The Jets provided the other major surprise of the weekend exhibition action. They bowed to the St. Louis Cardinals in St. Louis Saturday night 13-6, and for the second straight game Joe Namath failed to complete a touchdown pass.

Two games were played Sunday. The Boston Patriots beat the Cincinnati Bengals at Bowling Green, Ohio, 21-13, and the Cleveland Browns outscored the San Francisco 49ers at Seattle 24-19.

Other Saturday night exhibitions saw Baltimore stop the Oakland Raiders 34-30, San Diego edge the New Orleans Saints 10-7, Atlanta whip Philadelphia 13-7, Kansas City clobber Detroit 38-13, Chicago down Miami 16-10, Green Bay nip the New York Giants 22-21 and the Minnesota Vikings romp over Denver 26-6.

In addition to Buffalo's upset of the Redskins, the Rams tripped the Dallas Cowboys in Los Angeles Friday night 24-17.

Cleveland capitalized on 49ers errors for two touchdowns in 69 seconds in the third period and overcame a nine-point deficit. On one occasion, the Browns took over on downs at the 49er seven-yard line where Tommy Davis, back to punt, had to fall on the ball after a bad pass from center. Charles Leigh scored from the one.

The ensuing kickoff was touched by three 49ers before Cleveland's Tom Butler got it at the 49er six. Bo Scott scored two plays later from a yard out to put the Browns ahead.

Boston quarterback Mike Talferro tossed two touchdown passes in the first half that set the stage for the Patriots' conquest of the Bengals. Talferro hit Charlie Frazier with an eight-yarder and found Sid Blanks with a 22-yard scoring pitch.

Against the Cardinals, Namath played the first half and completed only six of 18 passes. The Jets' only points were 24 and 45-yard field goals by Jim Turner. The Cards' scores came on a 24-yard pass from Charley Johnson to Jackie Smith and field goals of 49 and 32 yards by Jim Bakken.

Baltimore's Johnny Unitas completed 12 of 18 passes for 150 yards and one touchdown against the Raiders and Lenny Lyles turned a 50-yard pass interception into another Colt touchdown.

Keith Lincoln raced four yards for a touchdown on the final quarter's first play to give San Diego its victory over the Saints. Atlanta tripped the Eagles on field goals by Bob Ebert and Bob Berry's touchdown pass to Mike Donohue in the third period.

Len Dawson's two touchdown passes to Frank Pitts highlighted Kansas City's bombardment of the Detroit Lions.

Dick Butkus of the Chicago Bears got in all kinds of trouble in the game against the Dolphins at Miami. He was first accused of biting an official, then with stomping on middle guard Larry Little's fingers during a fight that erupted with Miami ahead and 12 minutes left.

Butkus pleaded innocent on all charges after he was ejected. Shortly thereafter, Jack Concannon hit Dick Gordon with a 43-yard scoring pass that tied the game and Mac Percival won it with 14 and 24-yard field goals. The Bears' Gayle Sayers gained 69 yards on 15 carries.

Mike Mercer booted five field goals for Green Bay, the last a 17-yarder with 21 seconds left, to give the Packers their victory over the Giants.

Four field goals by Fred Cox and Gary Cuzzo's passing which scored one touchdown and set up another for the Vikings all were too much for Denver.

This week's exhibition schedule:

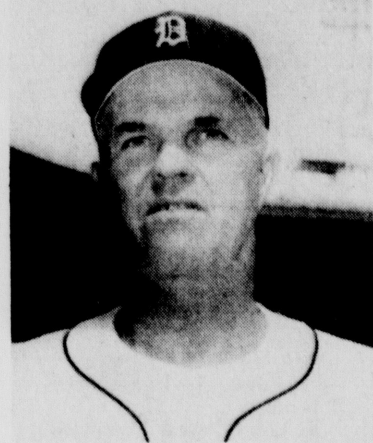

Friday night—Baltimore, NFL, at Houston, AFL; Buffalo, AFL, at Detroit, NFL.

Saturday—Atlanta, NFL, at Boston, AFL.

Saturday night—Chicago, NFL, vs. Green Bay, NFL, at Milwaukee, Wis.; Cleveland, NFL, at Los Angeles, NFL; New Orleans, NFL, at Denver, AFL; Philadelphia, NFL, at Miami, AFL; Pittsburgh, NFL, at St. Louis, NFL; Cincinnati, AFL, vs. Kansas City, AFL, at Jackson, Miss.; Oakland, AFL, at San Diego, AFL.

Sunday—Dallas, NFL, at San Francisco, NFL; New York, NFL, vs. New York, AFL, at New Haven, Conn.

John Sain Dismissed By Tigers

Johnny Sain

CHICAGO (AP) — Mickey Lolich had just fired a four-hit 8-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox for his 15th victory of the season, but Detroit's hero of the 1968 World Series was unhappy.

Lolich's dilemma stemmed from the firing of pitching coach Johnny Sain earlier in the day by Tiger vice president Jim Campbell.

Sain, one of the highest paid pitching coaches in the business at an estimated $30,000 a year, had voiced dissatisfaction last week by saying, "When my advice isn't used and there are no results from what I'm doing there, then I figure it's time to leave."

Campbell met with Sain Sunday morning and, after a brief chat, Sain was fired.

Lolich said: "Last year I won 17 games and three more in the World Series. This year, I've won 15 so far. In 1967, I had lost 10 straight before Sain straightened me out and then I won nine of my last 10 games. I would say John Sain has had quite an influence on my career."

Sain has shown results as a coach, but it's his methods of coaching which are not accepted by the establishment.

The accepted theory for training pitchers is to have them run daily and pitch batting practice at certain times. Sain refuses to allow his pitcher to run and would rather have them throw under his guidance than in batting practice.

Sunday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
PITCHING — Mike Cuellar, Orioles, pitched eight hitless innings before Cesar Tovar spoiled his no-hit bid in the ninth and finished with a one-hitter, blanking Minnesota 2-0.

BATTING — Jose Pagan, Pirates, walloped a tie-breaking home run in each game and a key triple in a three-run rally in the opener, leading Pittsburgh to 7-5 and 8-6 victories over San Diego.

Devaluation of Franc A Form of Acceptance

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—France's devaluation of the franc was recognition of a reality, a bowing to the course of events, something that much of the world thought was lacking in the days of Charles de Gaulle.

The reality was, that despite the official value of the franc as stated by the French government, speculators and currency traders already had devalued French money. They weren't willing to pay 20 cents for a franc.

The weakness in the French financial situation was evident as long ago as May 1968, when workers and students rioted and the workers won big pay increases, something they had been denied for years previously.

Many experts predicted then that France couldn't absorb such increases in the costs of its goods—that inevitably French goods would become too expensive to compete in world markets. Especially when Germany was so competitive.

Adjoining France, Germany was enjoying a hardy economy. So strong was it in fact that many currency investors believed the mark to be one of the safest currencies around. They felt it was undervalued.

If the mark was indeed undervalued then it would make a good investment. It would mean also that German goods would enjoy a price advantage in foreign markets, which included France.

The matter came to a head in November, when the tremendous reserves of gold and currencies that had accumulated under the austere economy of earlier years began to drain from France. Francs were sold as overpriced; marks were bought as underpriced.

The money was sent from France to Germany by speculators, by investors in German enterprises and by purchasers of German cars and other products that appeared so attractively priced.

De Gaulle was urged to devalue in order once again to make francs attractive and to make French goods more competitively priced abroad. And in fact he was fully expected to make such an announcement.

At the same time, many French economists, government officials and financial men argued that Germany should help out by revalue or raising the price of the mark to make it less attractive. Germany declined to do so.

Well, so did De Gaulle refuse. He stood before an astonished world in late November and declared that the value of the franc would be maintained. How? By a return to austerity. French workers would be asked to work harder.

It was a courageous stance, but it didn't work.

In making the devaluation announcement, the French government in effect conceded that these realities would have to be faced:

First, that the franc already was being traded at a discount below its official value; second, that the fight to maintain the franc's strength when franc's were being cashed in was becoming unbearable.

It was "common sense," said President Pompidou, to bring the franc into line with the rate to which it had already dropped in foreign trade transactions.

The official statement declared: "To try to overcome this handicap would be to choose a policy of brutal deflation which would impose unbearable sacrifices and massive unemployment on the country."

In other words, the populace of the nation, which had rioted a little more than a year before against the austerity of the De Gaulle government, would not be asked to make further immediate sacrifices in the name of austerity.

US Could Maintain CBW Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird says the Pentagon will be able to maintain its chemical and biological warfare—CBW—program under a Senate proposal to put new curbs on testing, storage and transportation of the controversial weapons.

The proposal, drafted in conferences between sponsors of a series of CBW amendments and members of the Armed Services Committee, comes before the Senate for a vote today.

It marks another major step towards completion of Senate action on the $20 billion military procurement authorization bill, which has been debated more than a month.

The composite CBW amendment was endorsed by Laird in a statement which said it "will allow us to maintain our chemical warfare deterrent and our biological research program, both of which are essential to national security."

The CBW amendment would put rigid restrictions on the open-air testing of nerve gas. Future testing would have to have approval of both the secretary of defense and surgeon general. They would have to inform six congressional committees 30 days in advance of such tests and provide details of the project.

It also would prohibit procurement of CBW delivery systems. CBW agents could not be stored outside the United States without the approval of the foreign country involved, and the secretary of state would have to report it wouldn't violate international law.

The amendment requires that the surgeon general approve all plans to transport CBW agents, that all lethal weapons be detoxified before being transported, and that the secretary of defense notify Congress and other federal officials of plans to move such weapons.

While the Senate struggles with the controversial military matters, the House has little action scheduled for this week. The House wrapped up its big tax reform bill last Thursday.

Ex-Bishop Expected to Teach

SANTE FE, N.M. (AP)—James P. Shannon, former Roman Catholic auxiliary bishop of Minneapolis-St. Paul, is expected to teach his regular class today at St. John's College here. He said Sunday he would remain in the church despite his marriage, but a former colleague said the nuptials automatically excommunicated him.

Shannon, 48, and his bride, the former Ruth Church Wilkinson, 50, a Protestant who was previously married three times, returned here Saturday night, according to Richard Weigle, president of the college.

The couple was married Aug. 2 in Endicott, N.Y., by a Protestant minister, the Rochester (N.Y.) Democrat and Chronicle reported Sunday. Shannon then issued a statement to the New York Times acknowledging the marriage.

"I do not intend to leave the Catholic Church. It is my spiritual home. I love it dearly and have worked to the best of my ability as one of its priests for 23 years," he said.

But the Most Rev. Leonard P. Cowley, auxiliary archbishop of the Minneapolis-St. Paul diocese, said in Minneapolis: "By marrying, he incurred excommunication, there's no need for a declaration of it."

In New York, experts in church law said Shannon's marriage violated Canon 2388 of the official code: "Clerics in major orders and all persons who presume to contract marriage with those clerics automatically incur excommunication."

Bishop Cowley said Shannon could still issue sacraments validly but that such action was against the law of the church. He said the marriage could have been legal within the church if Shannon had "received the dispensation to marry beforehand and married a person who was free to marry."

Shannon, in his statement, said, "It is a source of sadness and regret for both of us now that because of our marriage it will no longer be possible for me to serve the people of God as a priest or as a bishop."

He said he had written Pope Paul VI to assure him "that I have no intention of trying to function as an underground cleric... I have no intention of leading or joining any movement which seeks to hurt the church."

Shannon resigned his Minnesota post earlier this year after an exchange of letters with the Pope in which he took exception to church opposition to birth control. He has been teaching a graduate course in education and is to become vice president of St. John's next month. The college is not affiliated with the Catholic Church.

Male Celibacy Wasn't Appreciated in Sparta

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail: Accidents can impair the mind as well as the body. A Denver psychiatrist says that 10 per cent of all accident victims develop permanent emotional ailments, some so severe they can no longer work.

In ancient Sparta, male celibacy was practically a crime, and groups of women sometimes beat up bachelors in the street.

Despite the popularity of the dry martini, Americans are using more water than ever. The daily average consumption has risen from 115 gallons per person in 1920 to 150 gallons today.

The mightiest gales of our universe, notes the National Geographic Society, are vast "solar winds" of hydrogen that blow steadily through space from the sun. It takes such a wind 10 days to travel from the sun to the earth's atmosphere.

Sweet death? A London nutritionist has raised the question whether sugar may not be more of a culprit than fat in coronary heart disease. He cites in evidence several countries, including the United States, where heart disease has risen as sugar consumption skyrocketed.

Idol on wheels: The automobile is now such a strong instrument of self-expression, according to one firm engaged in motivation research, "that it has replaced home and motherhood as a gauge of security and research. Most Americans take more pride in owning a new car than they would in being elected president." That is, until they dent one of its fenders.

How to be smart. Your best chance to be born highly intelligent, no matter what your social class, says a British obstetrician, is to arrange to be the first child of a woman over 35. Your worst prospect is to be the fifth or subsequent child born to a woman under 30. These are likely, says the doc, to have an I.Q. well below average.
